You would measure time the measureless and the immeasurable.

You would adjust your conduct and even direct the course of your spirit according to hours and seasons.

Of time you would make a stream upon whose bank
you would sit and watch its flowing.

Yet the timeless in you is aware of life's timelessness,
And knows that yesterday is but today's memory and tomorrow is today's dream.

And that that which sings and contemplates in you is still dwelling within the bounds of that first moment which scattered the stars into space.

But if in your thought you must measure time into seasons, let each season encircle all the other seasons,

And let today embrace the past with remembrance and the future with longing.

The Bicentennial, our nation's two hundredth birthday. A time for reviving colonial arts and crafts, as well as, partaking in the modern crafts. It is also a time for Reflection, solitude, and planning for the next two hundred years.

One will long remember the rush of the football team onto the field for the first game of the season, the roar of the crowd, the Pitt game, the selection of Mr. and Miss Mountaineer, a brisk walk to classes on a winter's morn, the excitement of a skater's train, or the peacefulness of playing frisbee on the Mountainlair plaza.

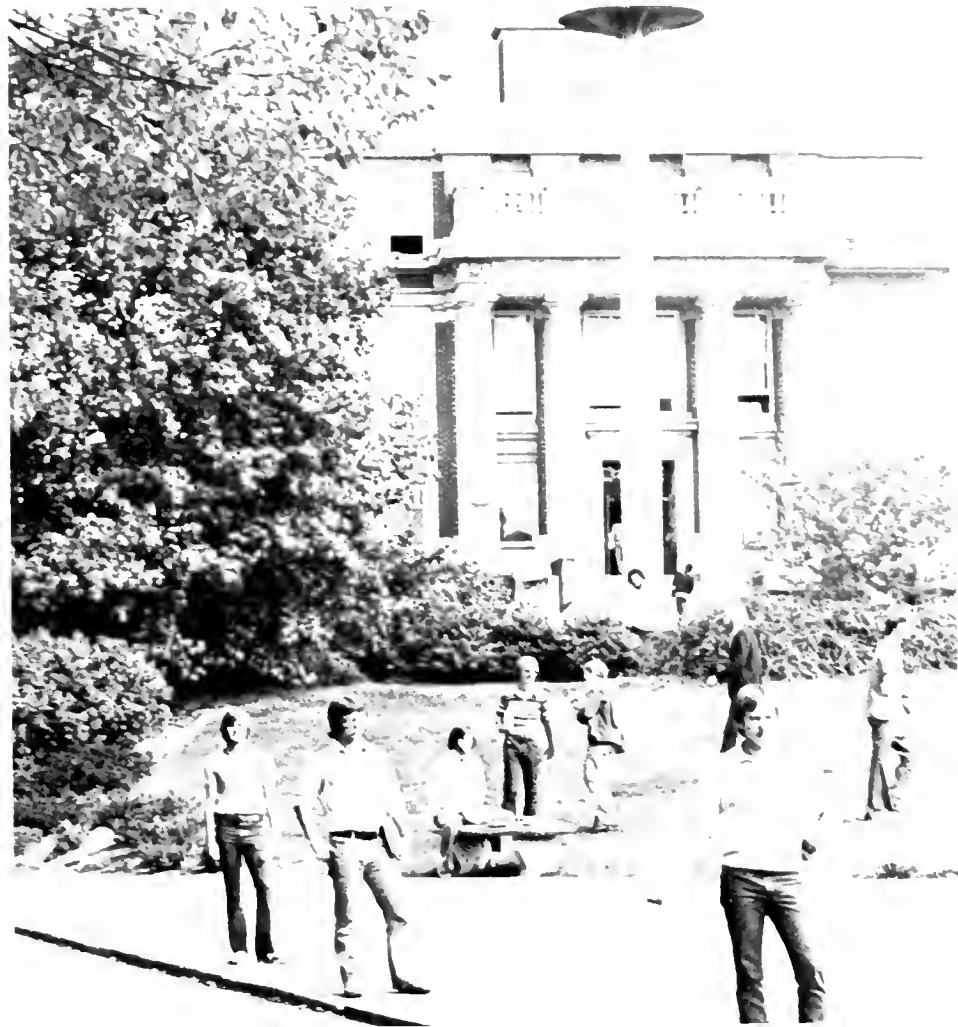

Whirling, twirling, swinging, singing: They've rediscovered square dancing. In pioneer days dancing played a big part in the lives of the settlers.

Square dancing, browsing among the booths and exhibits, testing one's dart throwing skill, and enjoying some good ol' time fiddling were a few of the events offered during Mountaineer Week.

A look at the new with an eye toward the old can deliver a provoking message in this year of history. Contrast the clothing habits of present day students with the Priscillas and Zacharys of days gone by. Transportation and pastimes have changed also, and so have dance and music. As a matter of fact, the whole business of going to school has undergone vast changes in the history of our country.

Governor and Mrs. Arch A. Moore visit WVU for the Homecoming activities.

America has come a long way in 200 years . . . from a loose'y knit group of 13 colonies carved out of a wilderness to the most prosperous country in the world. And, we've made a lot of contributions to mankind in the process. So what that our forefathers' "Great American Dream" has yet to be fully realized. Few dreams are ever completely fulfilled. If they were, we'd have no reason to keep on striving.

SENIORS

In one's freshman year everything is new, strange, fresh, and a little frightening. It's a time to adjust to the hectic rush of University life. The sophomore and junior years are times to build one's self confidence, become aware of one's expectations and limits, gather new and lasting friendships, and sorting out one's direction and goals for his life. In the SENIOR year, you have adjusted to your surroundings and have created a pattern of living much different from any past or future life style. Now that you know who sells the best pizzas and the coldest beer, have struggled through pre-registration and add/drop periods till it's no longer a struggle, have established a circle of friends who will stick with you through all the partying and the all-nighters, have become involved with your school and know your instructors, know when to avoid the downtown traffic jams, know which courses to take and not to take, know about the towing companies, the parking tickets, and the "safe" places to park, found the ideal college apartment. It's time to leave, graduation. No more 8 am or 7 pm classes, no longer will you drive to field placements, no more all-night cram sessions or finals, not having to move every four to eight months, and the times of loafing in the Lair, dodging traffic at Grimland's Island, and eating at the local hamburger place has come all TOO suddenly to an end. The cloudy realization that your one long time dream has become a reality. It's a time to say good-bye to friends you'll never see again and to seriously begin looking for a job. It's a sad/happy time filled with hope.

STUDENT LIFE

What does it mean to be a student at WVU? First, the fact that you're in college and away from all strings attached at home. You usually go through your "wild streak" your freshman year and later settle down; but some never do. You must adjust to living in a totally different environment: either a dorm or an apartment.

You become accustomed to your classes and learn the tricks of the trade of how to get around the rules of the University. It doesn't take long to learn what classes are "cake" and which ones that are hard; either by personal experience or by word of mouth.

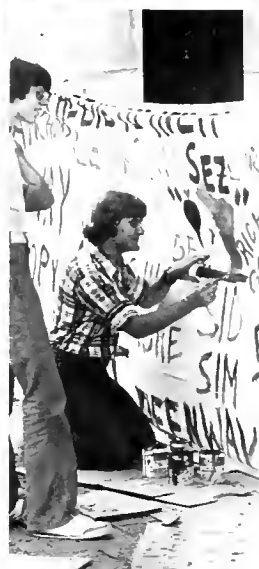

It depends if you live within walking distance if you have to cope with the problems of transportation and wondering how to get to class on time. If you drive, you have to get to the Lair early or wait in line for an hour to park your car. If you are not careful, the towing syndicate will take your car away when you have collected enough unpaid tickets.

We are so fortunate that we can depend upon the PRT. It only works, of course, when you're late for class and after waiting fifteen minutes, a car finally arrives and you "squish" on to one of the cars. After classes, one may go to the plaza, relax with some friends, throw a frisbee, or watch the dogs chase each other.

Morgantown is a winter wonder land. You wonder how to walk down a hill without slipping and rolling down it or how to drive your car on a sheet of ice and snow. Of course, everyone enjoys a good snowball battle and sleigh riding. The more experienced skiers have their favorite weekend hide away.

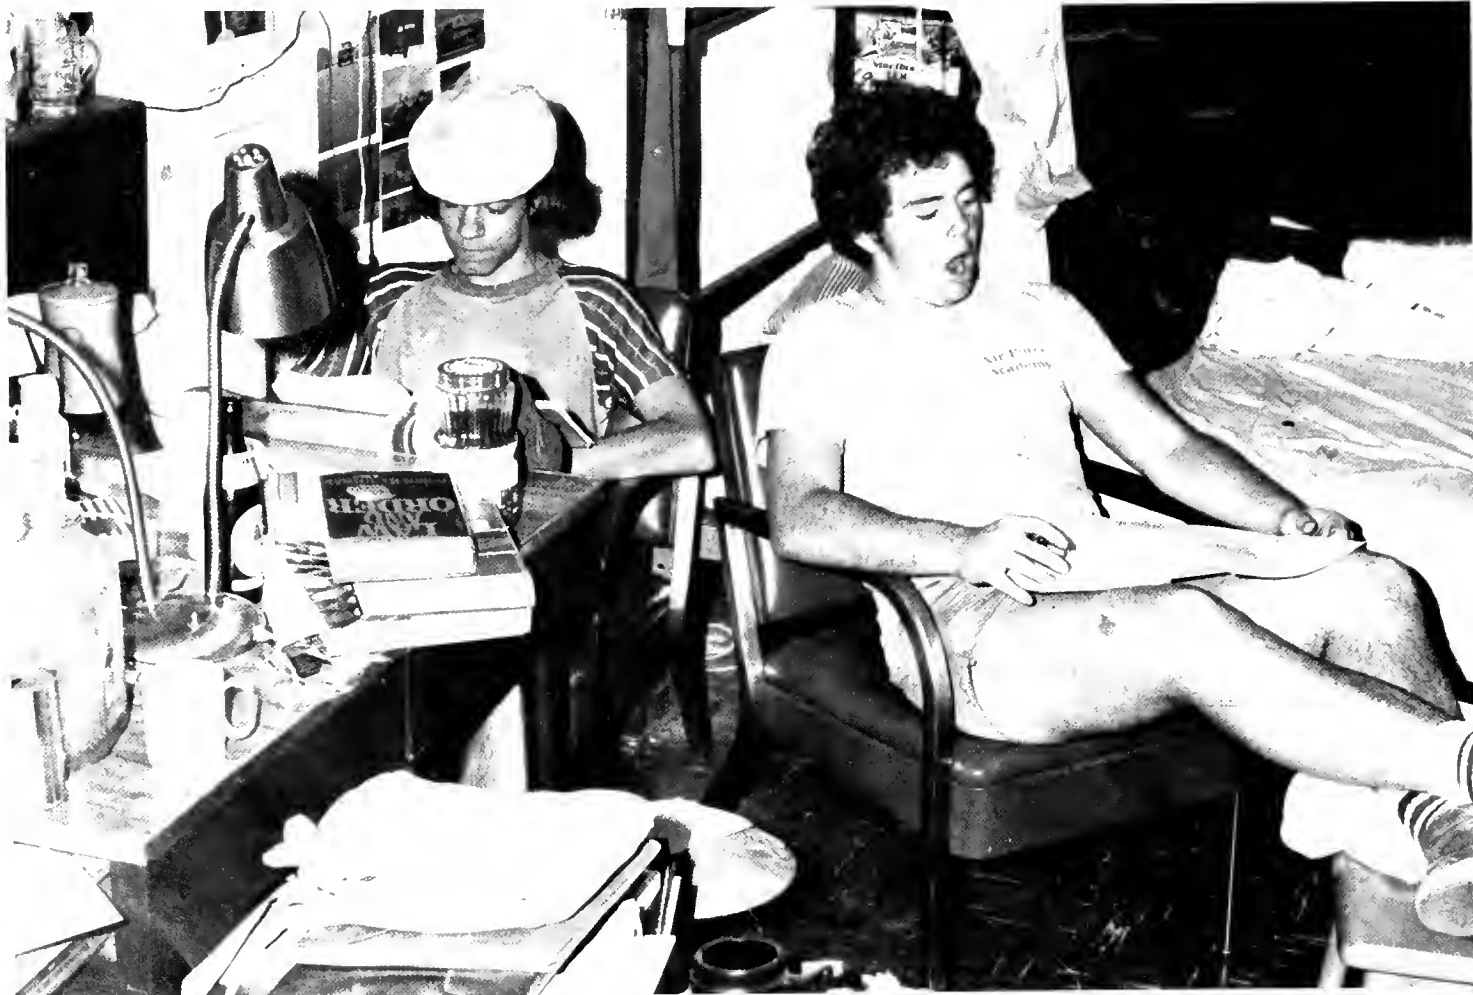

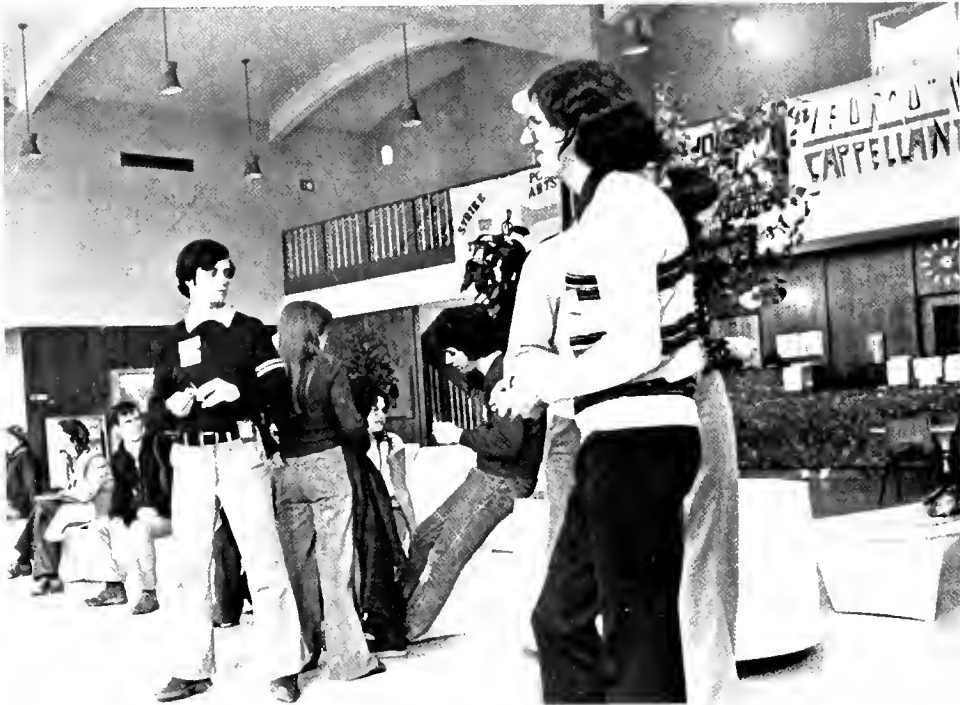

The weekend for WVU starts Wednesday night to celebrate that half the week has passed. In between all of this you study and cram for tests. Before you know it Finals have arrived. A time for all nighters, crammers, headaches, and saying good-bye to friends; some for the summer and some forever. Last but not least, packing all one's belongings and moving out. Funny how much one can accumulate during the year. After the twentieth trip to the car you will wonder where all of the stuff came from. But such is the life of a WVU student.

Dorm Life

Dorm Living; Living in a dorm is quite an experience; some good and others . . . You have to get accustomed to living away from home; adjust to your roommate which is not always an easy process. Your RA can make life comfortable, enjoyable if you have an understanding one or make life seem like hell! One thing for sure and that's the dorm is rarely boring. One can always find a water fight, dirty magazines, a broken vending machine to kick and swear at or a friend to kick and swear at. Your friends are around and have something to drink or smoke. If you want to try something risky, bring up a keg and do not invite the RA to participate in the drunken brawl which soon follows.

Apartment Life

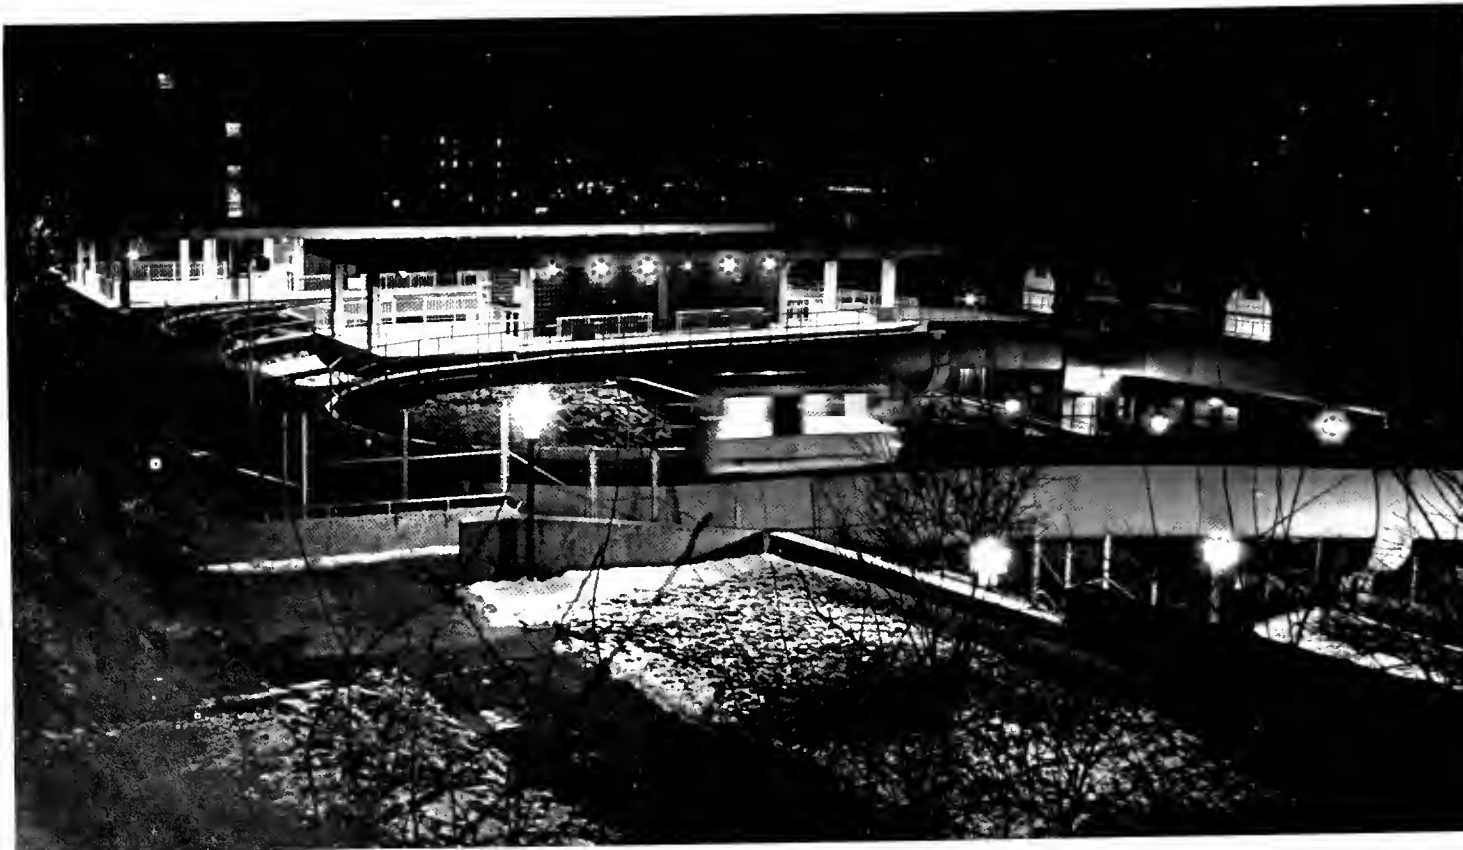

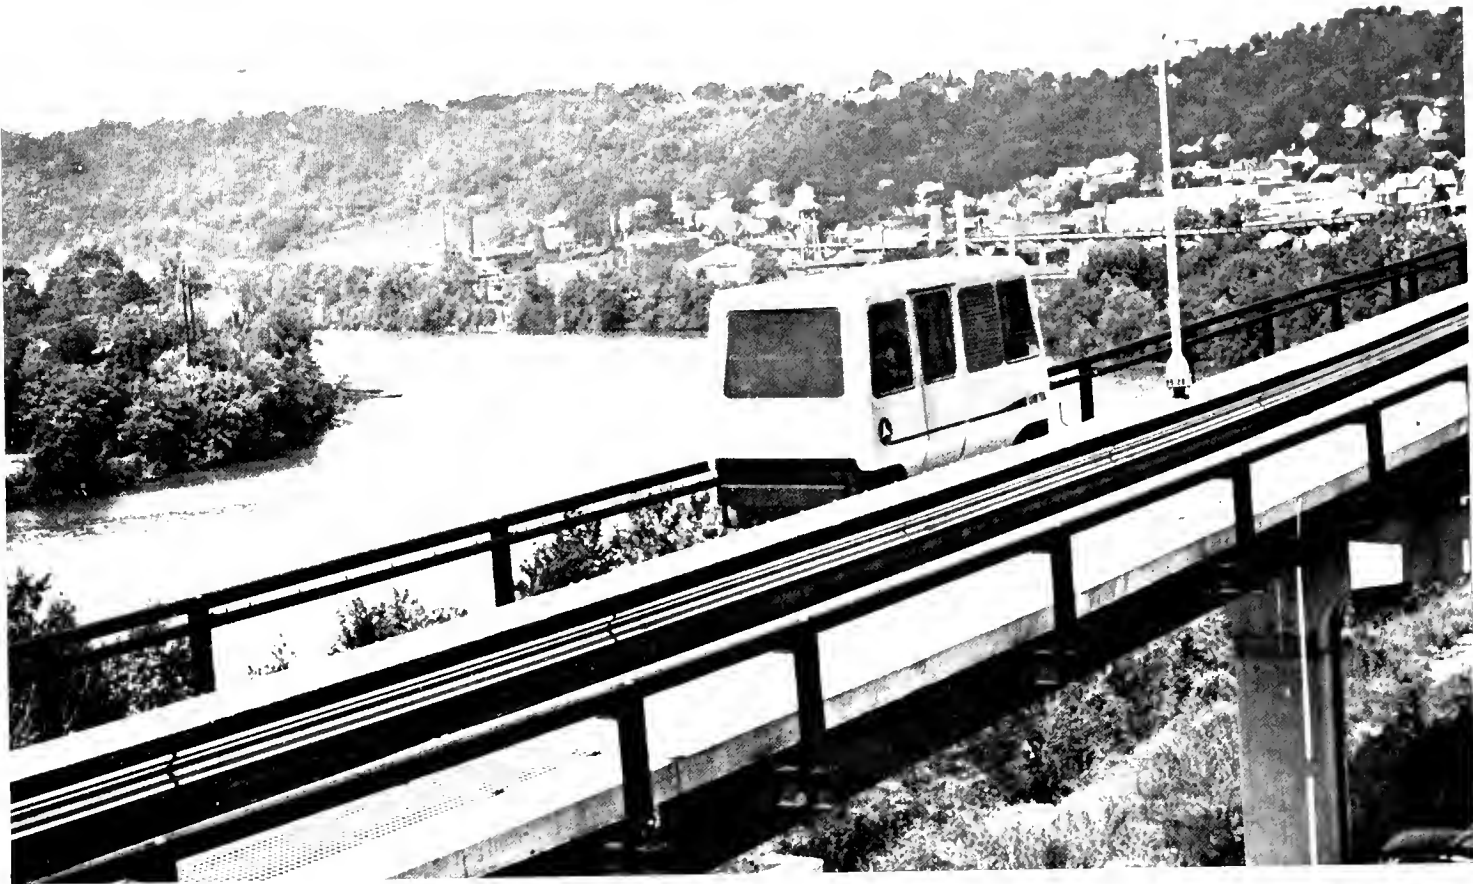

Apartment Life; Life away from campus is not always rosy. In Morgantown finding an apartment is always a hassle. One must cope with landlords and prices that coincide with living in either luxurious or dirt cheap apartments.

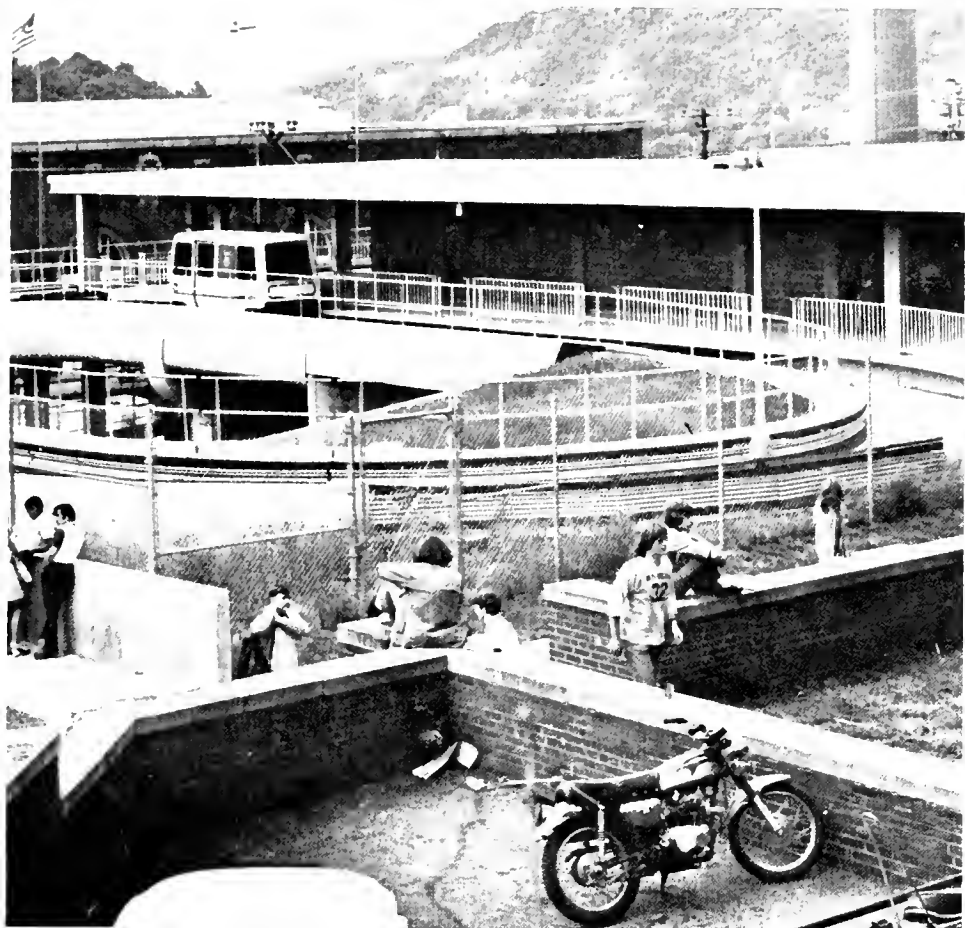

But, there is nothing better than after a hard day of classes when you go home to your bungalow and head for your favorite chair, prop your feet up on a cluttered coffee table with beer cans, dishes, stale munchies left over from the all-nighter and then you hear your roommate yell, "It's your turn to cook dinner!"

Yet, off-campus living has its advantages, quiet place to work, or party and you have your own personal property. Oh! Such is the price of the good life.

How to Get to Class . . .

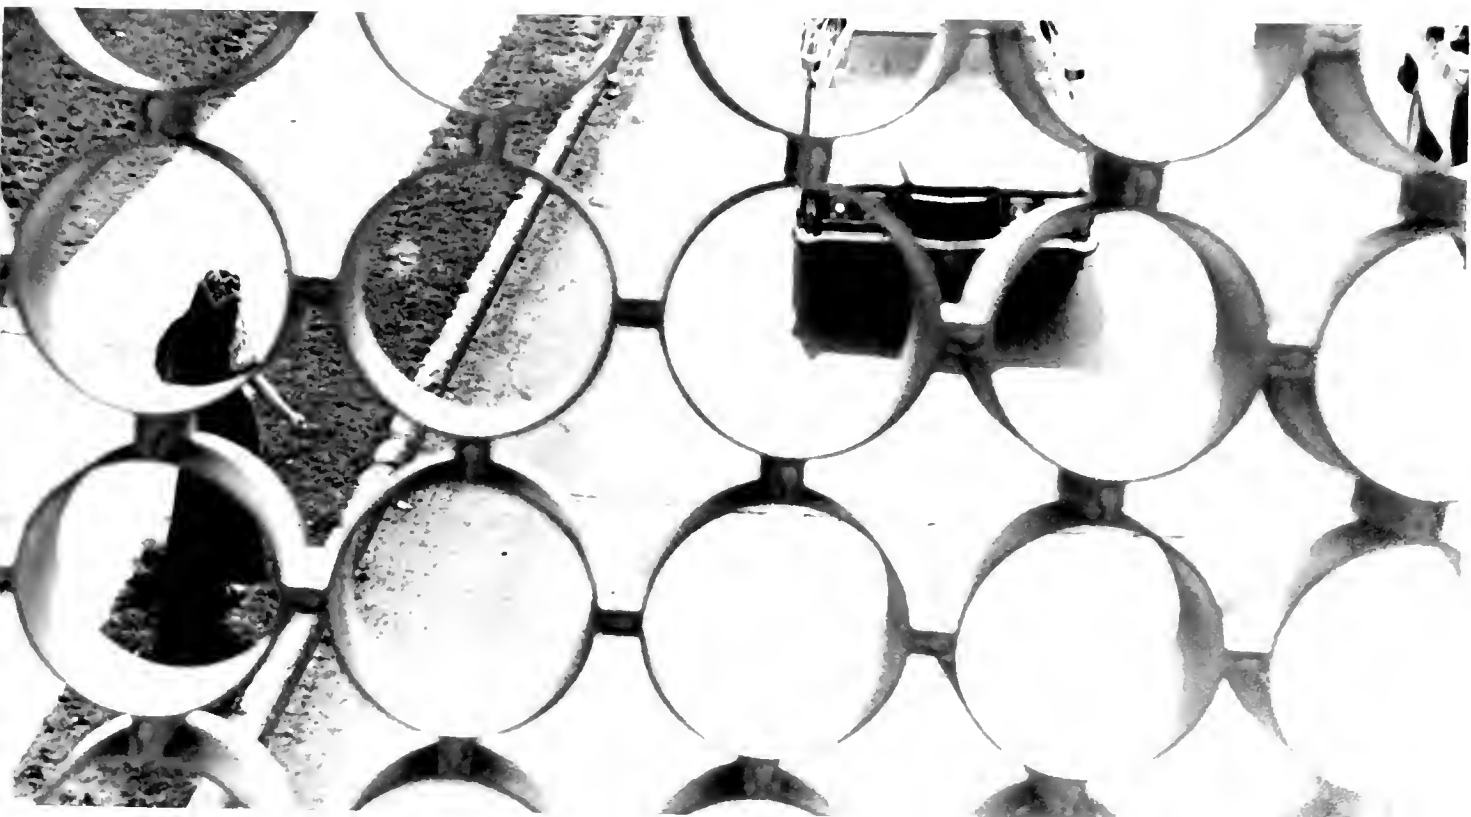

The West Virginia University Morgantown Personal Rapid Transit (PRT) System is the first of its kind in the world — one of the few fully automated mass transit systems that truly gives its passengers a ride into the future.

PRT is controlled by a system of computers with no vehicle operators or ticket takers. During rush hours, the cars leave the stations on a computer-arranged schedule. During off hours, they work just like an elevator — push the button and your personal car will arrive. And unlike your private car, PRT vehicles take care of themselves after you reach your destination.

Snow in Morgantown

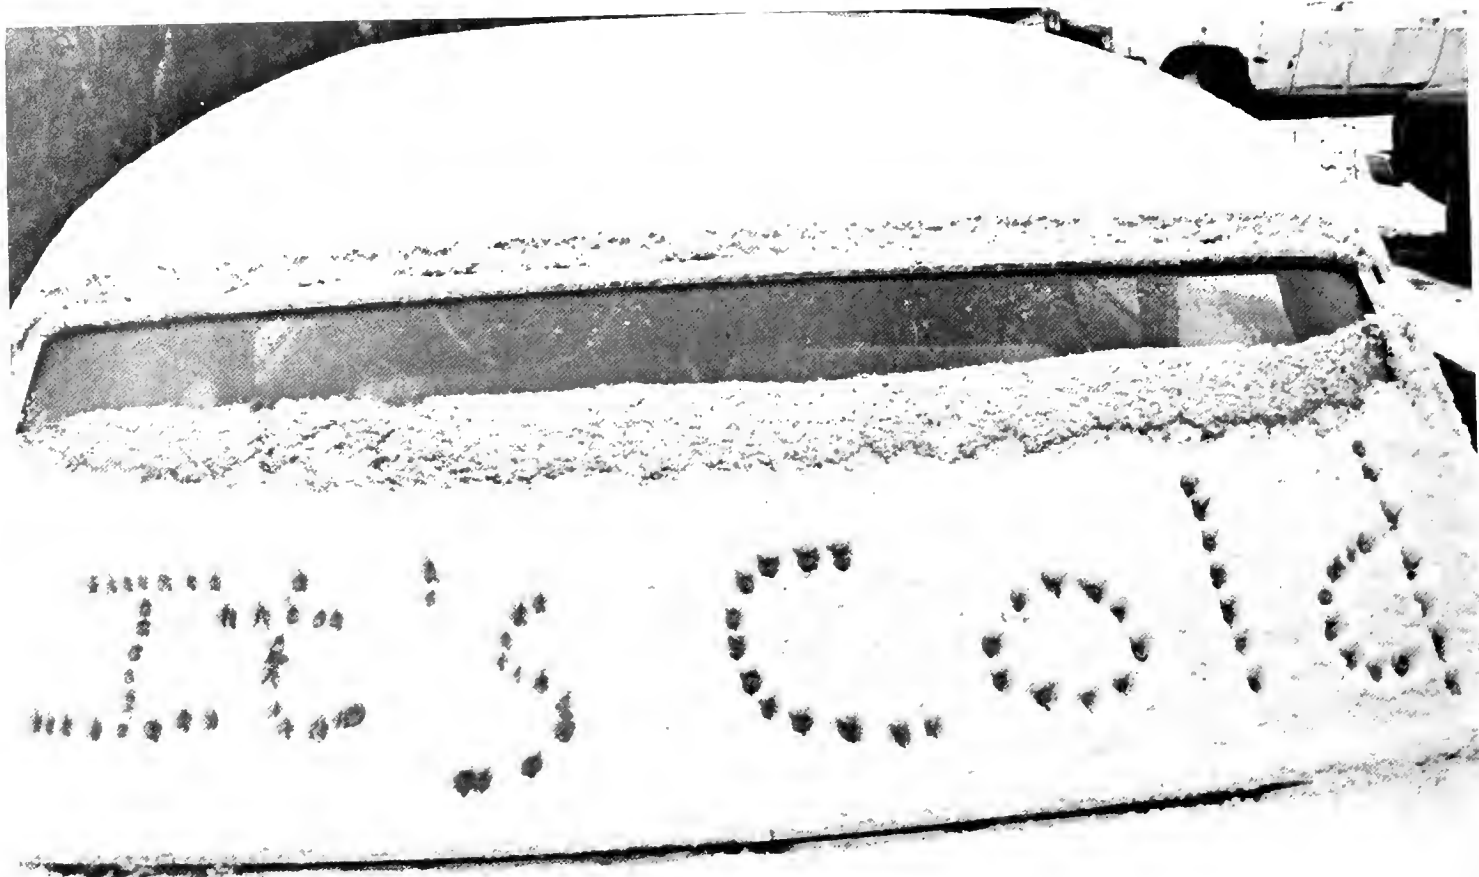

Winter in Morgantown usually creates some problems when it comes to transportation. Everybody slips and slides either on wheels or on foot. But that's only one aspect of the snow in the university town. There is nothing more beautiful than on a snowy night to walk in the moonlight and see the snow sparkle and glimmer like a sea of diamonds. What could be more fun than to go out with a group of friends to sleigh ride — on inner tubes, garbage bags, cafeteria trays, or if you are lucky, a sleigh? It's great to regress to your childhood and have a good old fashioned snowball battle.

To brighten the WVU student's life, the University provides many facilities and planned entertainment; such as, plays, concerts, and speakers. There are a variety of different concerts students can attend, from Wet Willie to Bach concerts performed at the CAC. The speakers run the gamut from "the white witch," Sybil Leek, to A. J. Manchin, former West Virginia REEP Director who campaigned to clean up the state by collecting junked cars. The Theatre has had a vintage year with the musical hit "Gypsy," and the satire-comedy "The Women," and many other successful productions.

One can usually find entertainment on the WVU campus. If it's going to the Blue Ticket Tavern to hear a fiddle contest or a free movie in the Lair on a Friday night!

WVU CONCERTS:

Fleetwood Mac

FLEETWOOD MAC didn't enjoy playing at the Coliseum, according to post-concert remarks made by their road manager, but their performance certainly failed to show it as the British rock band captivated a crowd of pre-Thanksgiving University concertgoers. The group displayed a thoroughly professional demeanor throughout their show, although the band felt that the Coliseum's size and structure was unsuited to Fleetwood Mac's musical style. Eileen Smith

OPPOSITE PAGE: AMERICA and ERIC CARMEN: The music of America and Eric Carmen reverberated through the Coliseum and a captivated crowd experienced an evening of rock.

The Pop Art Committee had a slow start this year in booking top name acts; but near the end of the year they surprised us with America, Eric Carmen, Billy Joel, and The Outlaws. As is typical in university life, one must wait in line for hours to get the "good" tickets and/or just obtain tickets.

AMERICA and Eric Carmen

THE ONLY BAD THING about PRINE: The only bad thing about Prine's Saturday night performance at the Lair was that a lot of people who wanted to did not get to see him.

He was accompanied by no one other than his fans, several of whom sang along. They knew ALL the words.

Prine's style lies somewhere between Bob Dylan and Kris Kristofferson, with a helping of country twang added. And like them, his voice will never be called melodic. But it's a strong voice and it never faltered; he handled his acoustic guitar masterfully.

He sang everything from "Paradise," his anti-strip mining song, to "Grandpa Was A Carpenter" and "Everybody," a conversation with Jesus, from which he concludes that "everybody needs somebody that he can talk to." His versatility and genius were reflected in his ability to entrance his audience with the moving, pensive "Hello In There," a groping poem about old people's loneliness, a few minutes after they had laughed along with his raucously humorous "Dear Abby." Sidney Bell.

CHARLIE DANIELS BAND performed at the WVU Coliseum with Wet Willie to an enthusiastic group of cheering students as exhibited in photograph below. Charlie Daniels and the members of his band may claim to be just a bunch of "long-haired country boys," but they present some exceptionally fine Tennessee mountain-grown music that enthusiasts from the Appalachians to the Rockies can appreciate.

The group's performance reached its zenith when Daniels got out his magic fiddle and the band swung into "The South's Gonna Do It Again" and the perennial goodie, "Orange Blossom Special." Eileen Smith

JOHN HARTFORD performed with the New Grass Revival in a Mini-Events concert held November 23, 1975, in the Lair Ballrooms.

PATTI SMITH: It was a concert to remember. From the opening strains of "We're Gonna Have a Real Good Time Together" to the final ones of "My Generation" encore, Patti Smith captivated a sell-out crowd in the Lair Ballrooms. Intensity is the word.

Patti Smith performed with a physical, emotional and sexual intensity others could only dream of matching. To the simple, primitive but powerful three-chord rock and roll of her band, she moved around the stage — fists pounding air, hips undulating — dizzily spinning in an often uncontrolled frenzy. And the energy flowed. It poured forth from her flailing toothpick frame and poised lips and viciously thrust itself onto the audience.

David Singleton

Wishbone Ash

WISHBONE ASH took a few bruises a while back when lead guitarist Ted Turner made his exit in search of greener pastures. But his replacement, 23-year-old Wise-field, is a genuine asset to the group on both guitar and vocal, displaying all the talent and expertise of the departed Turner. Percussionist Uptok seemed a bit disappointed with the audience reaction to the band's performance. "We don't know whether it was us or the audience, but the crowd didn't really seem to get into it," he commented in a post-concert interview.

Eileen Smith

OPPOSITE PAGE: MANDRILL slated as the evening's 'B' group, played to a mixture of cheers and jeers, but they featured one of the most dynamite brass sections to grace a Coliseum stage.

Gypsy

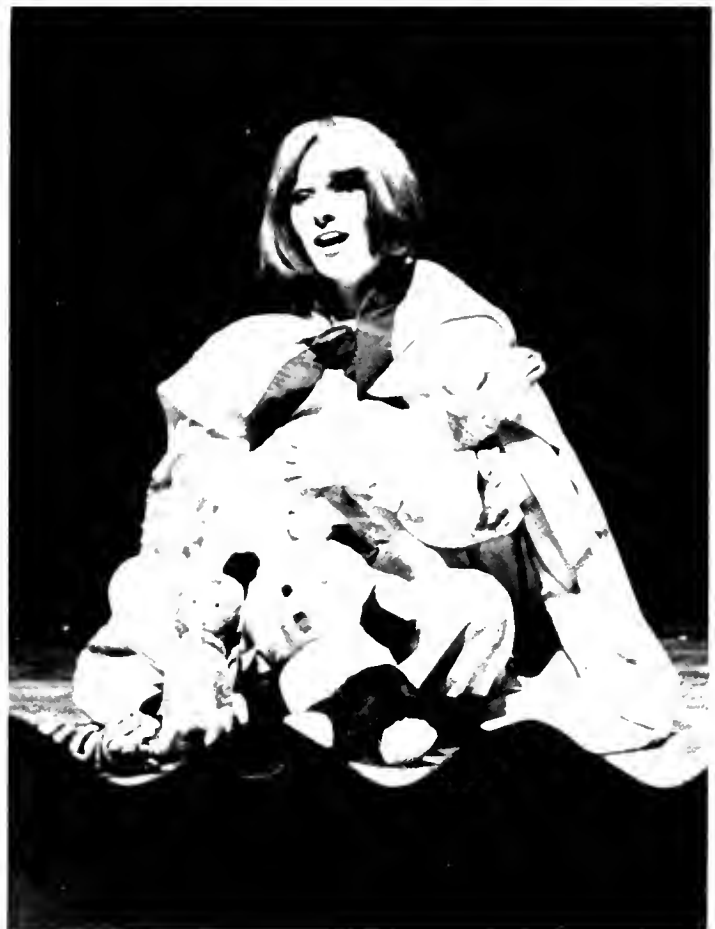

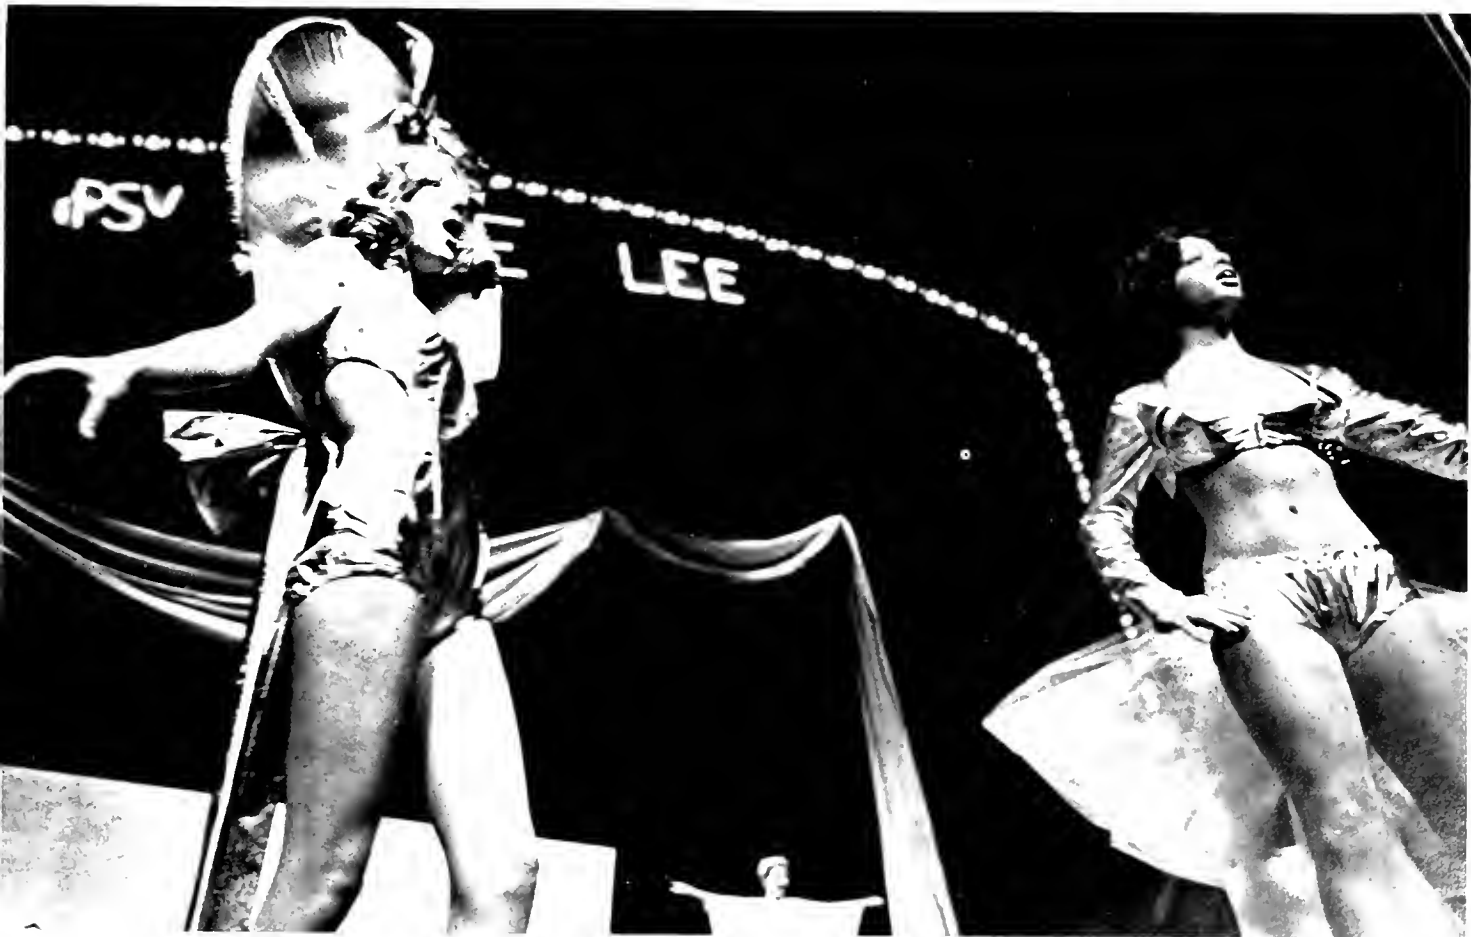

"Let me entertain you/Let me make you smile/. . . I'm very versatile . . ." says it all for "Gypsy." This delightful production, performed at the Concert Theatre of the Creative Arts Center (CAC), is comic, quasi-tragic and a fine evening of musical and dramatic entertainment.

The story of "Gypsy" is set in the years 1921-36. It revolves around Rose, a stage mother to end all stage mothers. Rose wants to make her daughters stars. She glorifies her daughter June and pushes the no-talent Louise into the background. When June elopes, Rose turns her attention to Louise. Louise is Rose's last hope to propel one of her daughters to the stardom that she always wanted, but never had. Rose refuses to believe that the heyday of Vaudeville is over. When the show falls on hard times, she is forced to book her daughter in what she considers the lowest of theatres — the burlesque house. It is there that Louise makes her monumental decision and takes her first step to fame as Gypsy Rose Lee.

Louise was played by Mary Beth Derry and sister June was portrayed by Mary Ann Vingle. In what director J. McIlwee called "most demanding role" Nancy Myers played Mama Rose.

The Women

The play, set in the late thirties, involves the efforts of a clique of women to play respective roles in their high class, artificial society wrought with "vain show, comedy, tragedy, hope, and disappointment."

After watching Clare Boothe Luce's THE WOMEN, one might suspect there is some truth in that old cliché, "Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned." The play depicts the lives of a group of women who belong to the social butterfly class of elite. They are those distinctively known as the "pillars of society."

Their loves and hates are each other, as they delight in hearing the latest gossip about each other and manipulating each other's lives. They are there to help each survive various crises, but somehow they also long for each other's destruction.

Director Charles Neel chose the play largely because of the opportunities for women it offered; the cast consisted of twenty-one women portraying a wide range of women. Teresa Smith and Greg Paxton ERICH VON DANIKEN: Were the ancient Gods actually foreign space cosmonauts? This is the question that Erich Von Daniken addressed himself before an overflowing crowd at the Mountainlair ballroom. Von Daniken said the "religious doubts" started him on his search to find evidence of foreign visitors.

Von Daniken believes that these visitors had great influence upon the minds of ancient man, and perhaps the minds of modern man as well. "The list," said Von Daniken, "goes on and on." In speaking of these various findings, he was careful to note "These are all pure speculations — they have never been proven." But, as he adds, "They have never been disproven, either." The fact that these visitors left behind tools for ancient man is the only way Von Daniken believes the pyramids of Egypt could have been built. George Skandalis

BETTY FREIDAN: Terming the women's movement the "second American revolution," Betty Freidan, feminist leader and founder of the National Organization for Women, outlined the stages of the revolution. Friedan spoke to a large audience in the Lair Ballrooms and was sponsored by the Forum Festival Committee.

"You have grown up taking for granted that women are people," she said addressing the women in the audience. "Twenty years ago, we had to consciously tell ourselves that over and over."

Women then recognized that they were being kept in these roles by society, she said. Once women recognized that they were people, they were made to feel guilty. They were told that they were hurting their husband's masculinity or the growth of their children. After women realized who they were, they started to band together. "At first, it seemed all we needed was numbers," she said. "In those first few years, cries of sex discrimination overshadowed race discrimination."

Changes were forthcoming in the practices of employers. Women voters now outnumber men. Friedan terms the economic powers of women as "enormous." Ray Betzner

DAVID SCHOUMACHER, former ABC News Washington correspondent, doesn't have a philosophy of journalism. But, he does have an attitude. Schoumacher's attitude toward journalism found its beginnings in the Washington press corp.

Though there are about 4000 reporters covering Washington, the press corp is more exclusive. "The business of Washington is not running the government," he explained. "The business of Washington is getting re-elected. So it is the reporters who cover that process who really make up the press corp." Schoumacher, the present anchorman of WMAL-TV in Washington, D.C., described this corp as a press establishment. "There is no conspiracy, but we do talk . . . almost exclusively to each other."

There is also a race among this group of reporters to get the most insignificant things as soon as possible on the air, he said. Ray Betzner

OTTO PREMINGER: Producer-director Otto Preminger spent 45 minutes responding to questions with humorous quips, sound advice and educated comments, before he showed one of his films, "The Man with the Golden Arm."

"People don't fight censorship enough," said Preminger in his most emphatic statement of the evening. "I feel that one of our most precious fights in America is for free expression. If this is ever diminished, then it is only one step toward dictatorship."

Preminger explained he had problems with censors trying to cut words from films such as "The Moon is Blue" and "The Man with the Golden Arm." He described "Moon" as a harmless comedy that used the word "virgin." In "Golden Arm" the word "narcotics" caused trouble. "That was 20 years ago," said Preminger. "Can you imagine what would happen if the censors tried that today?" Hoppy Kercheval

A. JAMES MANCHIN, former REEP Director of West Virginia, visited Morgantown to serve as master of ceremonies in the "Pound Your Professor" contest. A Volkswagen was demolished as the result of the contest. The professors were not physically assaulted; WVU students were given the opportunity to take their frustrations against their "favorite" professor by hitting a junked car with WVU professors' painted on it.

DICK GREGORY: Comedian, civil rights worker and former politician Dick Gregory began his career as a comedian working only in black clubs and theaters. In 1961, he was called as a last-minute replacement at Chicago's Playboy Club. Gregory spoke before a convention of the Ku Klux Klan. Not only was he allowed to finish his routine, he was a success.

Gregory was one of the first black comedians to break through the barriers of a white-dominated entertainment industry. During the civil rights movement of the '60's, Gregory participated in every major demonstration. He devoted his time and talent to giving benefits for civil rights groups, peace groups and other reform movements.

Gregory's appearance at the University was sponsored by the Black Experience Committee.

SYBIL LEEK: "Writing is my profession, witchcraft is my religion, and the occult is my science." Leek explained that there is a misunderstanding of witchcraft in the U.S. In Europe, where Leek was born and raised, witchcraft is accepted and is known as a religion. Leek was raised in a family that accepted the supernatural as the natural. She went out at age eight to become a journalist and used her "extra senses" in her work.

In her lecture, Leek described a revolution in the occult. This revolution will take away the limits on the mind. It will allow among other things the reception of knowledge from other sphere.

Parts of the Occult science revolution included: astrology; graphology or handwriting study (which is now acceptable in European courts of law); yoga; palm reading; telepathy and ESP. One of the problems people have with the revolution is that they do not accept and trust their senses. It is incorrect, says Leek, to always associate ESP experiences with "nasty events." Sybil Leek refers to herself as a "white witch" meaning that she does not use her talents for evil uses. Ray Betzner

RALPH NADER: "We have learned everything that is inconsequential," Ralph Nader said as he blasted America's educational system. "Very little education refers to where power is and who has it," Nader added. "There are very few of life's skills taught . . . skills needed if you are going to be a taxpayer and a citizen."

The consumer advocate charged that many of the nations problems today could be corrected through more relevant education. He said students graduate from college and cannot write an essay on nutrition, even though it is a problem that faces everyone. They cannot write an essay on chemicals, insurance, banking, petroleum or any company; all of which are relevant to becoming an aware citizen. Nader offered three solutions: 1. application of one's field to specific problems. 2. self-teaching, and 3. curriculum changes.

Nader implied through the entire speech that the most valuable education lies in community involvement and citizen action. He pointed out that students have an excellent opportunity while at college to receive both a university education and a civic education.

"We have been taught to believe rather than to think," Nader said. We have consumed knowledge, but we are not taught how to use it. He said that students are at their peak of imagination and independence.

Not only challenging education, the consumer advocate related his traditional gripes against industry. "What right do industries have to inflict pollution on Americans without paying any compensation? Why should it be against the law in a state to relieve yourself in a river when there are no restrictions on a factory doing the same thing?" asked Nader.

Nader said that in many cases "might makes right." If you pollute enough, you can get away with it. He added that studies show that over the next ten years it would take only two per cent of the nation's gross national product to clean up pollution. Hoppy Kercheval

JACK WHITAKER brought the marriage between television and sports into focus when he spoke to a small crowd in the Lair ballrooms. He was sponsored by the Forum Festival Committee.

The CBS sportscaster described what it was like in the early days of television.

"Two things sold television sets in those days: Milton Berle and sporting events," he said.

"Television was a lot easier then. Unfortunately, we had too many people doing radio broadcasts with pictures." In those early days of television, (the 1950's) football was not broadcast nationally. "That didn't come about until the Green Bay Packers beat the Kansas City Chiefs and the Madison Avenue crowd got behind the game," said Whitaker.

"Professional football became so popular so quickly that no kid can afford to attend any games," said Whitaker.

Whitaker, who has covered football off and on since 1952, thinks the game is still healthy, but its golden age could be over.

Testifying as a witness at the President's Commission on Amateur Athletics last fall in New York, Whitaker said, "the trouble with amateur athletics is the administrators are amateurs and the amateurs are professionals."

Whitaker isn't certain whether any problems were resolved last fall, but he feels the commission is the strongest of any in past history.

The Philadelphia native went on to stress that a power struggle exists among the National Collegiate Association of Amateur Athletics, the Amateur Athletic Union, and the U.S. Olympic Committee. All three will have to relinquish some of their powers, said Whitaker, if the amateur program is to improve. On the subject of government subsidies for its athletes, Whitaker would like the U.S. athletes to remain independent, but still receive some help from the government. 1976 Miss Monticolas

The Miss Monticola Search Committee along with members of the yearbook staff have selected two women to bestow the honor of "Miss Monticola." Ms. Loretta Lewis (left) and Ms. Anita Weiner (right) have been chosen for their originality, creativity, and dedication which is necessary in the design, production, and completion of the 1976 issue of the MONTICOLA.

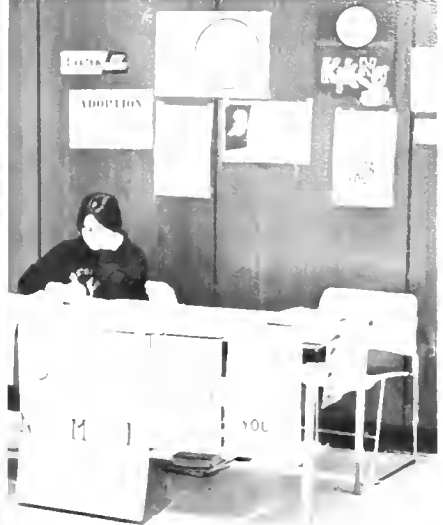

Ms. Loretta Lewis is a Social Work senior and the daughter of Mr. James H. and Janet L. Fox of Danese, West Virginia. In Ms. Lewis' senior year, she has been Editor-in-Chief of the WVU MONTICOLA, Co-ordinator of the 1976 BSW Symposium/Career Day, Chairperson of the WVU-Undergraduate Student Social Work Organization, and has written several articles for the USSWO Newsletter. She has, also, been a delegate and representative to the National Federation of Student Social Workers Conference and the Council on Social Work Education held in Philadelphia, PA; the Annual Welfare Conference held at Huntington, WV; the CCS Social Action Work Shop held at Jackson's Mill, WV; and the Regional Child Welfare Conference held at Charleston, WV. During her college career she has been active in the Sigma Phi Omega Honorary, WV-SPRIG, PSC Photography Club, Editor-in-Chief of PSC CATAMOUNT, secretary-treasurer of the Student Volunteer Organization, a tutor in the Keyser Elementary Special Education Department, and a counselor for the Potomac Valley Sheltered Workshop. Ms. Lewis has been awarded the Who's Who Among American Junior College Students, attendant to PSC Homecoming Queen, and will graduate Magna Cum Laude from WVU.

Ms. Anita Weiner is an education junior and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Weiner from Charleston, West Virginia. She is editor of the Student Life and the Entertainment Sections for the MONTICOLA. Ms. Weiner is specializing in special education and plans to teach deaf children after graduation. Ms. Weiner enjoys sketching, rowing, and hiking.

GREEKS

The Greek system has been at West Virginia University almost as long as there has been a campus in Morgantown. As sororities and fraternities gained national acceptance, WVU received its share of distinctive organizations and houses. The Beta Theta Pi house at 225 Belmar Avenue was the first Greek house on campus; now there are over twenty-five. These houses are filled with enthusiastic, bright young people who find their special wants and needs fulfilled by the brother and sisterhood which the Greeks offer.

Greeks on campus participate fully in established campus activities, with their own divisions in float and banner contests, intramurals, spirit competitions and pageants. Distinctive Greek activities also make their mark on the WVU campus. Greek Week, Sigma Chi Derby Days, and Rush are all part of the system which the students recognize as truly Greek. Today, and in the future, the Greeks are proud and dedicated — and they are here to stay!

Panhellenic conducts formal rush during the fall term and informal rush during the spring term. Besides rush, Panhellenic tries to promote better relationships between sororities.

Alpha Delta Phi

Alpha Upsilon Chapter of Alpha Delta Pi was established on the WVU campus in 1924. To an A D Pi her sorority is a very important part of her life. Friendships and fun are a very important part of the sisterhood. A D Pi's are well known for their high standards. They consistently rank high scholastically. A D Pi's are individually and as a group involved in many campus activities.

Alpha Xi Delta — a group of girls, individuals, who have one thing in common — their pledge to the golden quill of Alpha Xi Delta.

By participating together in such activities as intramurals, Greek Week and Homecoming and individually in Student government, cheerleading and gymnastics, the girls experience the friendship and uniqueness that make our sisterhood grow.

A place where girls can live, learn and love each other — ALPHA XI DELTA!!

Gamma Phi Beta

Alpha Pi chapter of Gamma Phi Beta is one of 177 International chapters. Gamma Phi's at WVU are growing; we are proud, vivacious, hard-working and fun loving.

It is a privilege to be in college
It is an honor to be in a sorority
And, it is a distinction to be a
Gamma Phi.

Kappa Kappa Gamma

The Beta Upsilon chapter of Kappa Kappa Gamma is now celebrating its 70th year at WVU. Although Kappa places a strong emphasis on academics, we also strive to develop individualism. Our members and the sorority as a whole participate in various campus activities with spirit and enthusiasm. Friendships formed here will continue to grow throughout our lives and we'll always remember the owl, the key and the fleur-de-lis!

Don't call her a sorority girl — call her a Pi Phi.

She is an individual who is a member of the first national fraternity for women.

Her goals are limitless, her sisters add to her array of friends, her feeling of belonging and of being loved.

Who can be a Pi Phi? An individual, someone who wants to share, live, and love . . . call her a Pi Phi.

The Gamma Phi chapter received its charter in 1918. The chapter is one of 177 across the U.S. and Canada. We at WVU are proud of our brotherhood and friendship.

Phi Delta Theta

Constantly growing and becoming more active on the WVU campus, Phi Delta Theta remains large enough to give you the spice and variety from life, but small enough to keep the brotherhood alive. Phi Delt's are active intramurally, and along with our outside activities, we rank among the best academically. West Virginia's Alpha chapter says "It's great to be a Phi Delt."

Founded February 24, 1893, Delta chapter of Phi Sigma Kappa is the second oldest fraternity on campus. The WVU chapter boasts to having initiated more than 1,400 members; more than any chapter in the country. The primary goal of Delta chapter is to promote individuality.

Sigma Nu

Gamma Phi chapter of Sigma Nu has the unique distinction of being one of the oldest fraternities on campus, while also being the youngest. Founded in the early 1900's the chapter was re-founded late last year. Sigma Nu is a small, but growing chapter. Activities of the year have run a spectrum from numerous social activities and a broad involvement in the intramurals program to social services for such organizations as UNICEF and the Heart Fund.

Sigma Chi

Chartered in 1895, Sigma Chi is now in its eightieth year at WVU. With a membership from such diverse backgrounds as Landscape Architecture and Mining Engineering to Political Science and History, Sigma Chis can be found all over the University's campus. The fraternity itself is active in many different aspects of "college life," too. The UNICEF drive, Christmas parties for underprivileged children, fund raising for Wallace Village for Children, and Derby Days are permanent fixtures on Sigma Chi's calendar.

Pi Kappa Alpha was founded on March 1, 1868 on the University of Virginia and was established at WVU on December 6, 1904. Currently Alpha Theta supports a 50 man chapter. Two outstanding Pikes on campus are Dr. Leyland Byrd and Bobby Bowden.

The Pikes pride themselves in their 1940 chevy fire truck.

Theta Chi

Theta Chi has been on this campus since 1921 and has been a fraternity based on its proud traditions and a close brotherhood. This brotherhood is further strengthened by strong intramurals and our hellish social life. Theta Chi has acquired a new branch of its organization, "The Daughters of the Crossed Swords."

Rush . . .

Each semester a week of rush goes on in each Greek house. Men and women rush the sororities and fraternities ending the week by joining the Greek system. Pledge Day finds a mad rush to the chosen house.

Greeks do not just do things with other Greeks, they get involved on campus too. For instance, the Ugly Man on Campus Contest.

Greek Week

Greek Week combines all sororities and fraternities in teams for the Chariot races and Greek games. Helen of Troy is voted for and Hercules drinks for his fame. This is a week for fun and games and all Greeks.

Sigma Chi Derby Days

Sigma Chi Derby Days had their start in California in the 1920's with a Sadie Hawkins Day-type activity. By the 1950's the event was a day of field games including various relay races and contests. In 1976 Derby Days lasted a week and was packed with events to raise money for Wallace Village.

MOUNTAIN VIEW

SPORTS

Victory and Defeat, Winners and Losers, the Spectator and the Participant — each in their own way striving for success. Sports have helped fulfill our desire for competition and recognition. This desire is felt keenly by the athlete and the fan.

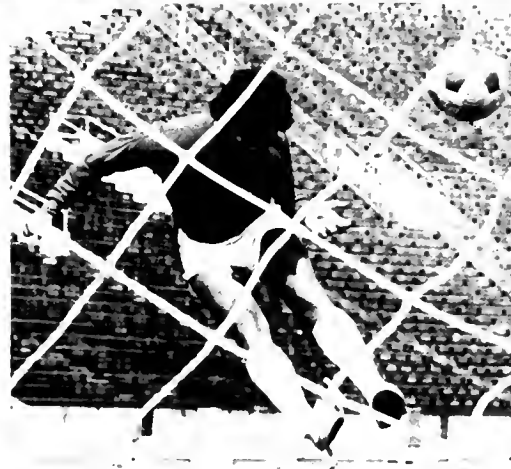

Sports have affected all of us. To some it is a brief respite — relaxing with a game of tennis or cooling off with a swim. To others it is a religion — sitting in 30° weather waiting for the game to begin or standing in line for hours to get seats at the Coliseum. To some sports is a meal ticket to an education, recognition, or fortune.

This section tries to cater to all these — the fair weather sportsman, the sportsmaniac, and the fame-seeker. In essence, however, it is dedicated to the man and woman who spend hours a day, days a week, and weeks a year honing their talents and skills in an effort to satisfy themselves and their fans.

Athletics are a vital part of life at WVU. The dedication and enthusiasm of WVU ATHLETE 1975-1976 has helped formulate a record of which we can all be proud.

While we may have lost some contests, the memories of SPORTS WVU 1975-1976 were ones of victory and success.

The 1975 Football season proved to be the big surprise in the WVU sports scene. Predicted by some to finish 0-10-1, the Mountaineers put some "mountain magic" together to end the season with an 8-3 record. To top off a fantastic football season and to ring in the New Year, they defeated North Carolina State 13-10 in the Peach Bowl.

The Mountaineers opened the season with an impressive victory over the Temple Owls in Morgantown. Fine rushing by Artie Owens, Dwayne Woods, Ron Lee, and Heywood Smith offset Chuck Muncie and the California Bears as the Blue and Gold defeated the PAC-8 runners-up 28-10.

Returning to Morgantown the Mountaineers squared off against Boston College. This pivotal eastern game saw WVU come out on top 35-18 in front of a capacity crowd.

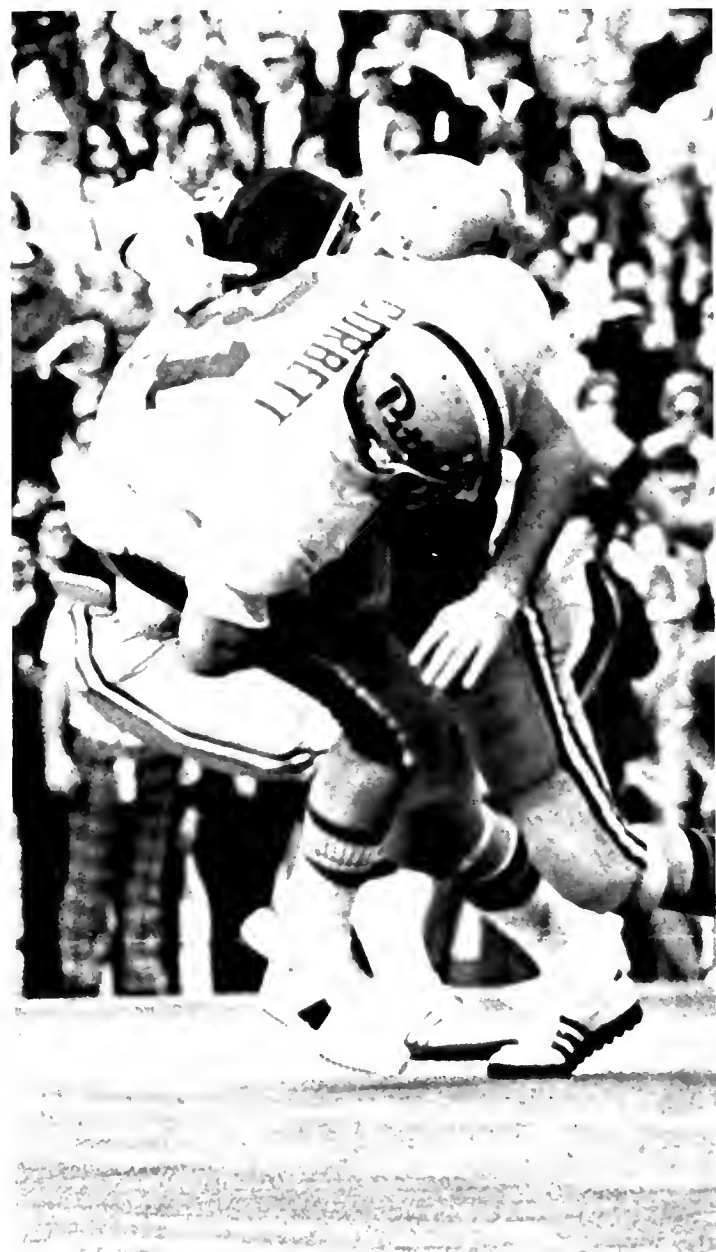

Win number four came against Southern Methodist of the powerful Southwest Conference. WVU defeated the Texas team 28-22.

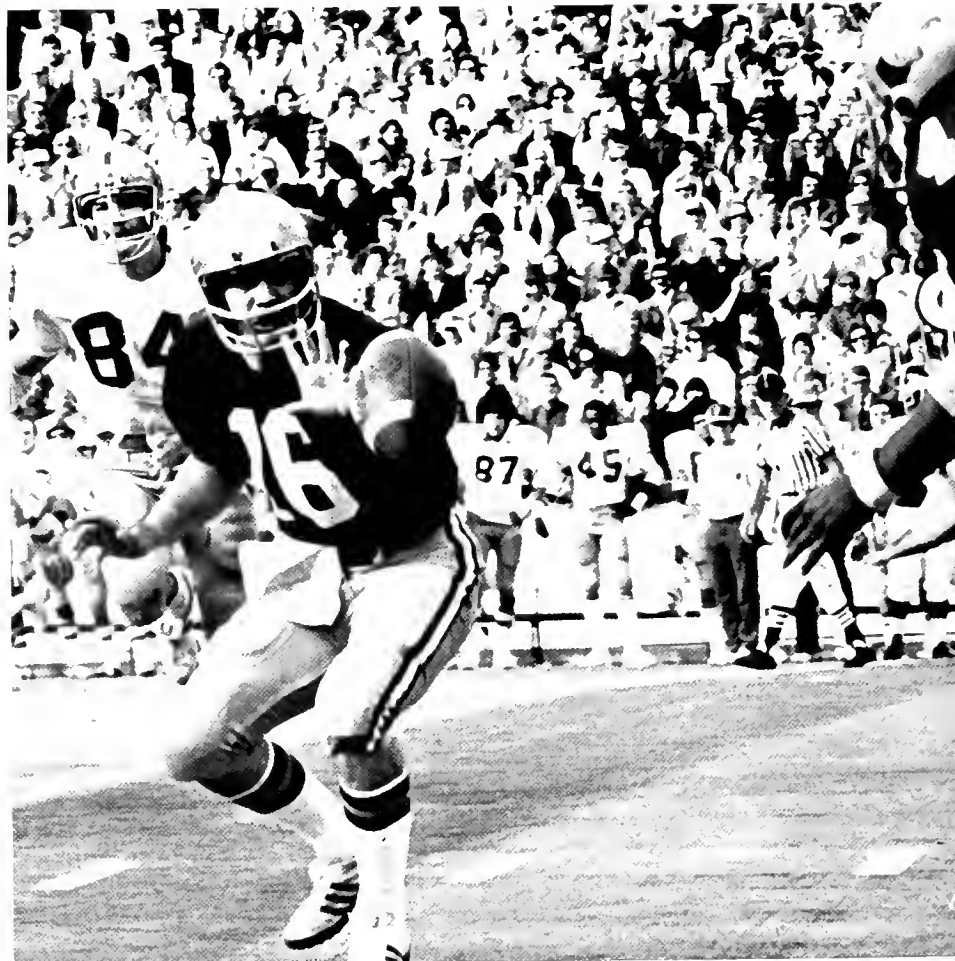

The Mountaineers faced a mid-season slump as they were defeated by Penn State, 39-0 at University Park. The team returned to Morgantown to face Tulane in the 1975 Homecoming Game. Once again they were defeated, 16-14.

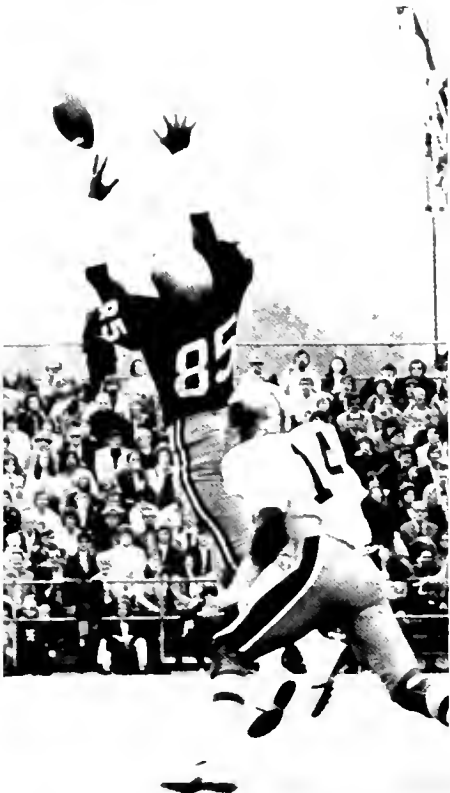

The Mountaineers got back on the winning track with a 10-7 win over Virginia Tech. Their sixth win came against Kent State by a score of 38-13.

The following week arch-rival Pitt invaded Mountaineer Field. In one of the greatest games ever seen in the history of Mountaineer Field, a last second field goal by Bill McKenzie lifted WVU over the Panthers by 17-14. Cheering and celebrations lasted throughout the week. Buoyed by the Pitt thriller, the Mountaineers defeated Richmond on the road 31-13. They closed the regular season with a heartbreaking loss to Syracuse, 20-19.

Several records were broken during the 1975 season. Artie Owens set a career rushing mark of 2,552 yards. His performance against Southern Methodist gained him the honor of Offensive Player of the Week by Sports Illustrated.

Bill McKenzie set a new consecutive extra point mark with 34 straight. Dan Kendra completed 28 passes against Syracuse.

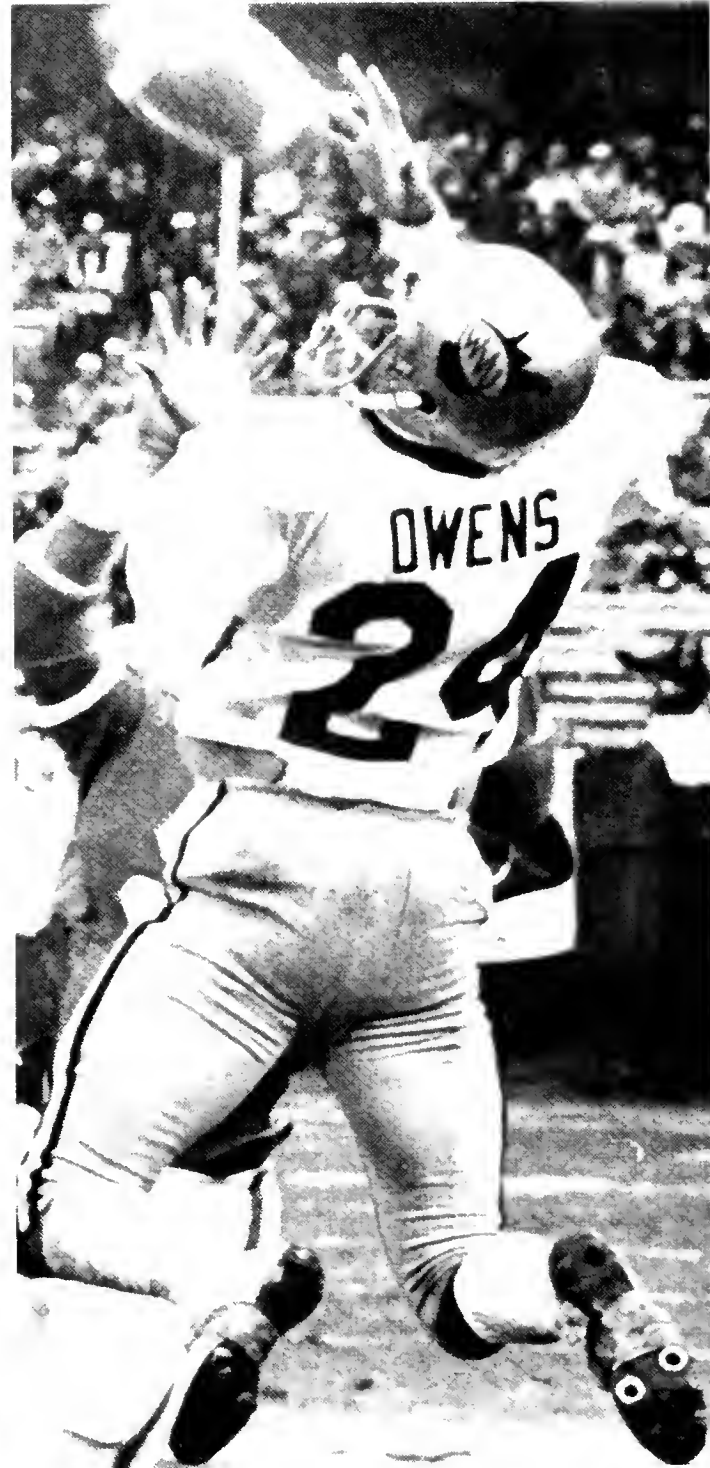

A new attendance record for home games was set with nearly 200,000 attending the six home games.

1975*

The 8th annual Peach Bowl was played in Atlanta December 31, 1975, in Atlanta Stadium. Both WVU and N.C. State had played in this post-season classic. In 1972 the Wolfpack defeated the Mountaineers, 49-13.

In 1975 the story was a little different. Buoyed by an aerial touchdown from Dan Kendra to Artie Owens with four seconds left in the first half, the Mountaineers dominated the second half.

The winning score came on a touchdown pass from Dan Kendra to Scott McDonald in the fourth quarter.

Kendra was named the game's outstanding offensive player and Ray Marshall was the outstanding defensive player.

The Peach Bowl was Bobby Bowden's final game as Mountaineer mentor as he takes over the reins at Florida State. Frank Cignetti, Bowden's offensive coordinator was named head coach.

If the 1975 season is any indication, 1976 should be a real fireworks of excitement.

Basketball

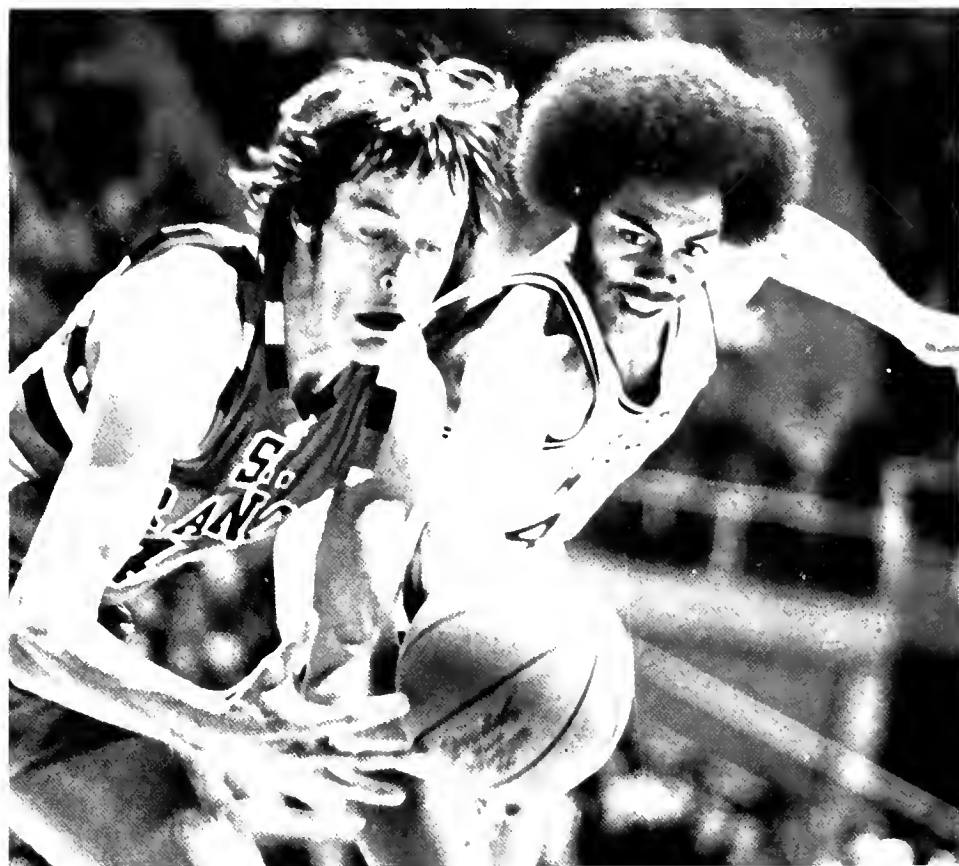

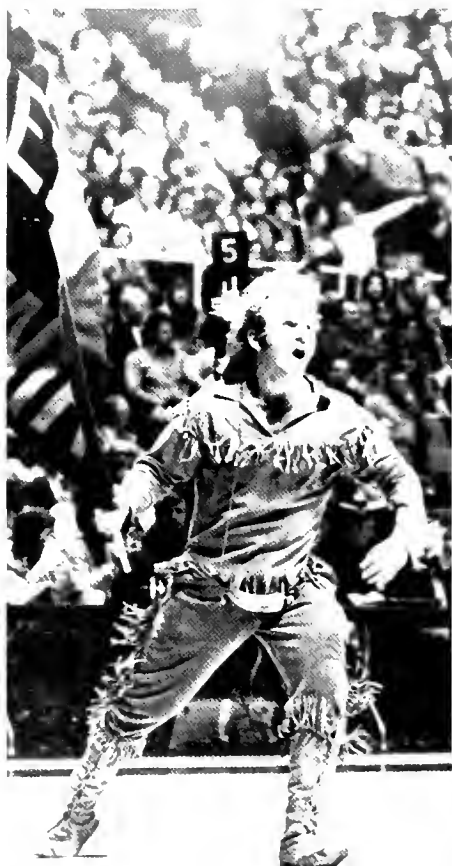

The Men's Basketball Team had their finest season since 1968. They finished the regular season with a 15-13 record. For the second year in a row the Mountaineers hosted the ECAC Southern Division Tournament. They were defeated by George Washington in the opening contest. In the Consolation Game, they defeated Villanova for 3rd place in the tournament. Four year senior starter Warren Baker was a member of the All-Tournament Team in the ECAC play-off.

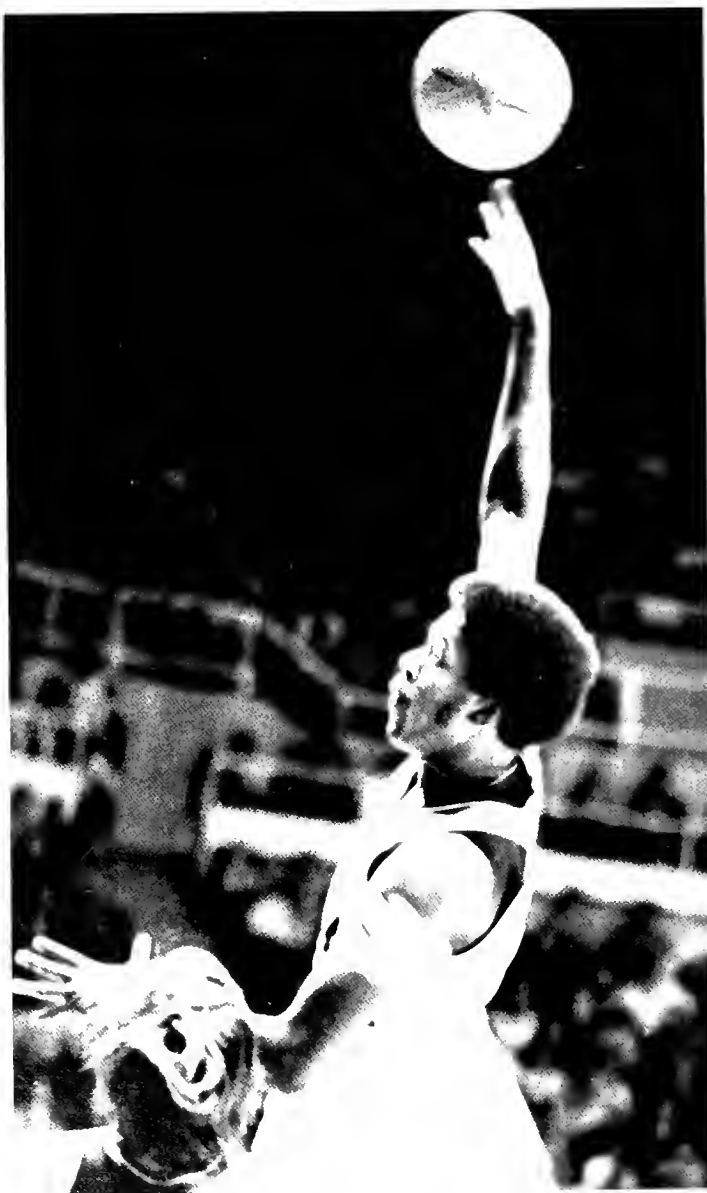

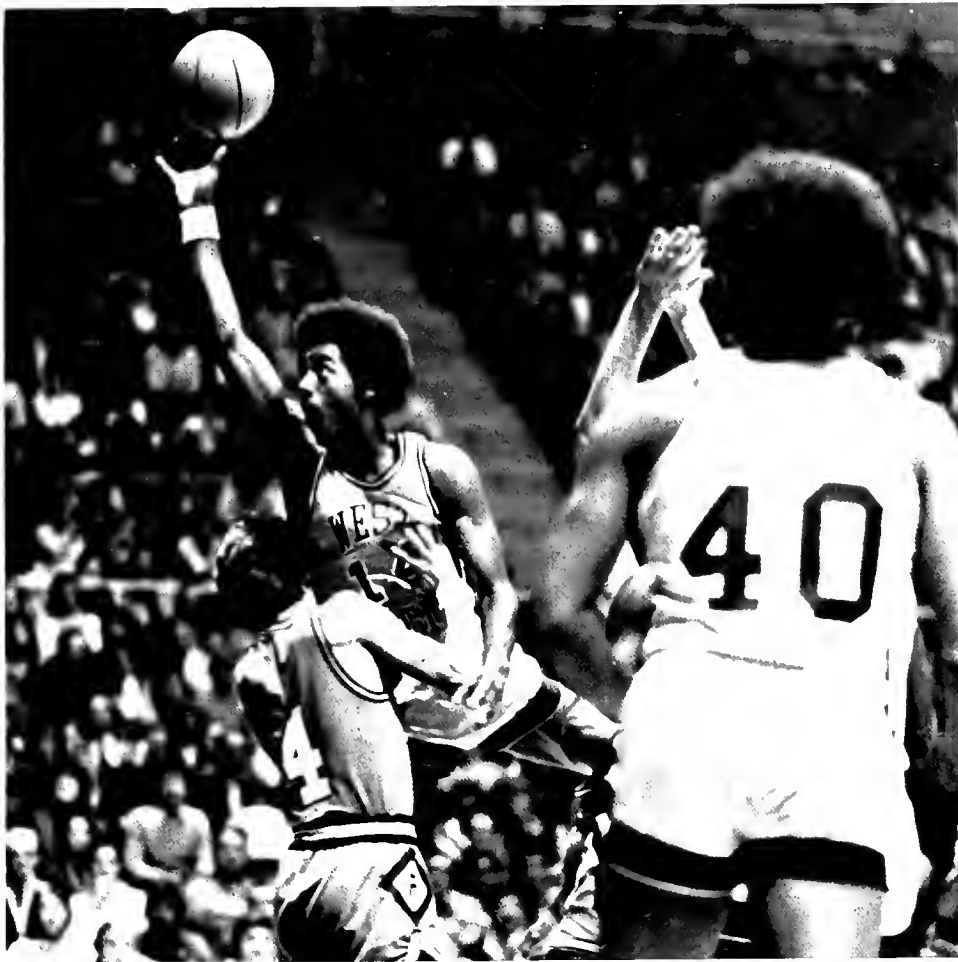

The Mountaineers, under the guidance of Joedy Gardner enter the 1976-1977 season without four seniors from this year's team. Gone is Warren Baker, four year starter and fan favorite; Stan Boskovich, leading scorer; Earnie Hall, floor general and playmaker; and Dave McCardle, an experienced letterman.

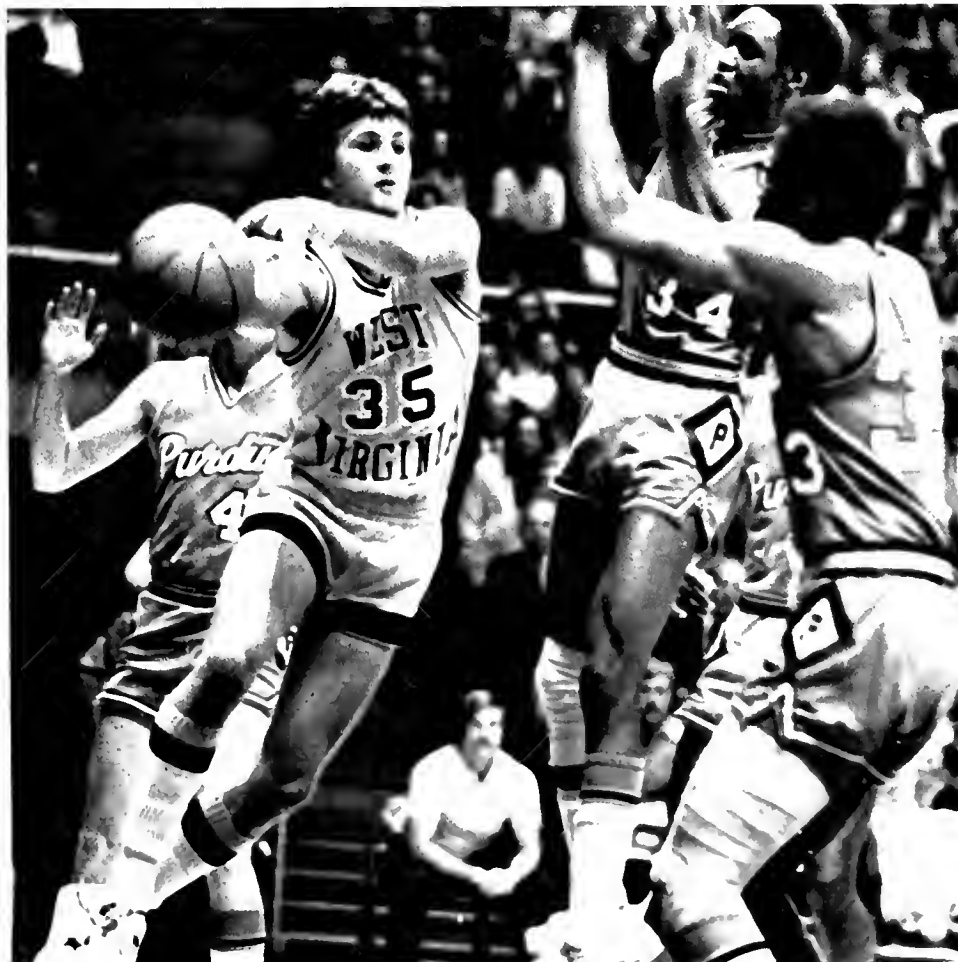

An experienced nucleus formulates the '76-'77 team. Returning to lead the Mountaineers will be the quick playmaker Bob Huggins; Russell Chapman, a strong rebounder and shooter; and Tony Robertson, a fine guard who dazzled the fans with his shooting expertise.

Sophomores saw a lot of action on the hardwoods this year. Sid Bostick proved to be an outstanding defensive player; junior college transfer Tommy Roberts contributed with his height and rebounding; and Maurice Robinson continued to improve in all aspects of play to emerge as one of the outstanding young players in the area.

Freshmen Junius Lewis and Dana Perno saw action and showed a lot of control and poise against the more experienced players. They should offer three more outstanding seasons for the Mountaineers.

Cross Country

'75-'76

*All-American
Alex Kasich*

West Virginia University is privileged to have All-American honors bestowed on cross-country star Alex Kasich. The senior from Sharon, Pa. was a consistent and dedicated leader well-deserving of the honors he received.

The West Virginia University Track Team completed a successful season with a 3-0 record. Led by outstanding track stars such as Mark Burke and Alex Kasich, they took 11 firsts in the Mountaineer Relays. After exams the team will participate in the Pitt Invitational and the IC4A championships in Philadelphia.

The Cross Country Team led by All-American Alex Kasich posted a 4-3 record. They posted second place finishes in the California State Invitational and in the Marshall Invitational.

Golf Team

The West Virginia University Golf Team had a disappointing season going into the final week of the year with a 4-11 record. They defeated Pitt, Cal. (Pa.) State, Muskingum, and Cal. State a second time. They participated in the Penn State Invitational, a tournament with a strong field.

Women's Softball

The West Virginia University's Softball Team initiated its season on the WVU athletic scene with an 8-3 record. They took double victories over Morris Harvey, Salem, and Ashland College. They split in their series with Ohio State and Muskingum. They lost their only contest with Ohio University.

Men's and Women's Gymnastics

INTRAMURALS

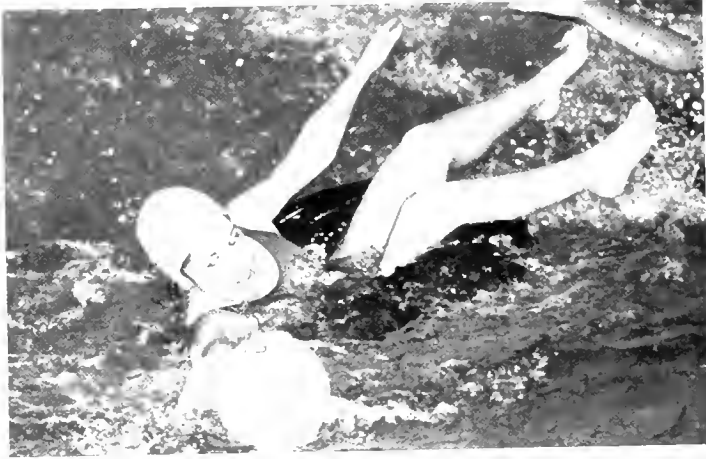

Take a group of unorganized, bored, out of shape students, looking for fun, add some work, sweat, laughter, tears and a tough competitive spirit — what have you got? — an intramural team. More and more students every year are discovering intramural sports at West Virginia University. There are a great many sports offered, ranging from flag football to swimming and diving.

Just sign up on a team and the recreation-intramural office takes care of organizing where, when and who you will play. Don't worry if you are not really athletically inclined, intramural sports are designed primarily to provide fun and recreation. If your team is good enough you might even win the all campus championship in your sport. In any event, you will be sure to meet new people, get some exercise and have a great deal of fun, too.

The Mountaineer:

*Proud, Dignified,
The Symbol of
West Virginia's Heritage*

He stands atop a jagged mountain peak, a long rifle in one hand, a coonskin cap in the other.

The spirit of the noble mountaineer has been embodied for the first time in a 15 inch high reproduction of sculptor Donald DeLue's original model. Made of semistone, and sold exclusively through the WVU Book Store, this stately reproduction is modestly priced at $39.95.

Those Were The Days

HISTORY REVISITED**

The Bicentennial year provides the opportunity for us to relish our nation's 200 years of history and to view the life of Morgantown and West Virginia University in the mid 1800's. During 1976, we should reflect upon the rapid changes that have occurred across our nation's life span. Modes of transportation have evolved from students riding horses and taking trolley cars to classes to riding inter-campus bus system and the PRT; although horses may be considered more reliable.

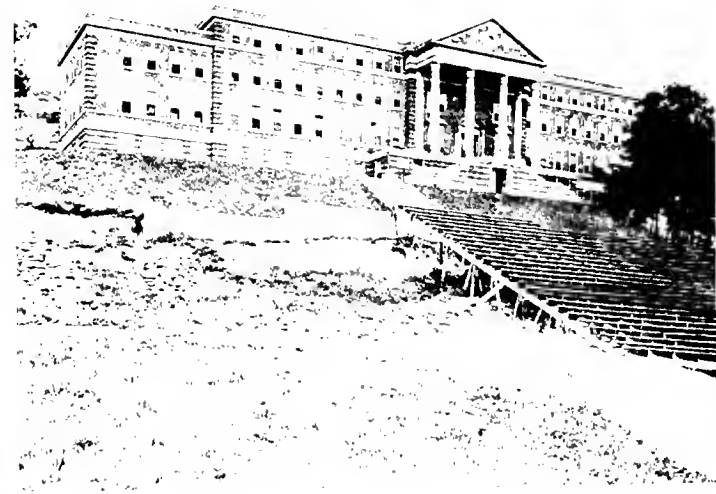

When was the last time you saw chickens and cattle grazing in downtown Morgantown? The horse and buggy was the favorite delight of the Sunday driver in the days of dirt roads and derby hats. Through the week the students had to struggle up the hill to classes in Woodburn Hall; but there was always time to stop and pose for a picture with one's best friends in the day's hottest fashion. The size of the University's graduating classes have increased in size from 17 to more than 5,000 students. The women wore mutton sleeves, starched blouses, and yards of dresses. The men wore narrow ties, vests, watch chains, and parted their hair in the middle.

West Virginia University had a burning desire for sports even in the early days of its establishment. The Football team played its first game in 1896 on a clearing near the main campus. The football player's uniform consisted of nickers, striped socks, shoes, a jacket, and a helmet resembling a night cap. The first basketball team was organized in 1904. WVU boasted of one of the first baseball teams in 1896. For many years the football games were played on a loose dirt field in front of the now women's hall. WVU showed its spirit in creating the huge Mountaineer that towered over the football field, players, and crowd. Many famous sports players have had their start at WVU. Hot Rod Hundley was among this acclaimed group.

MONONGALIA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

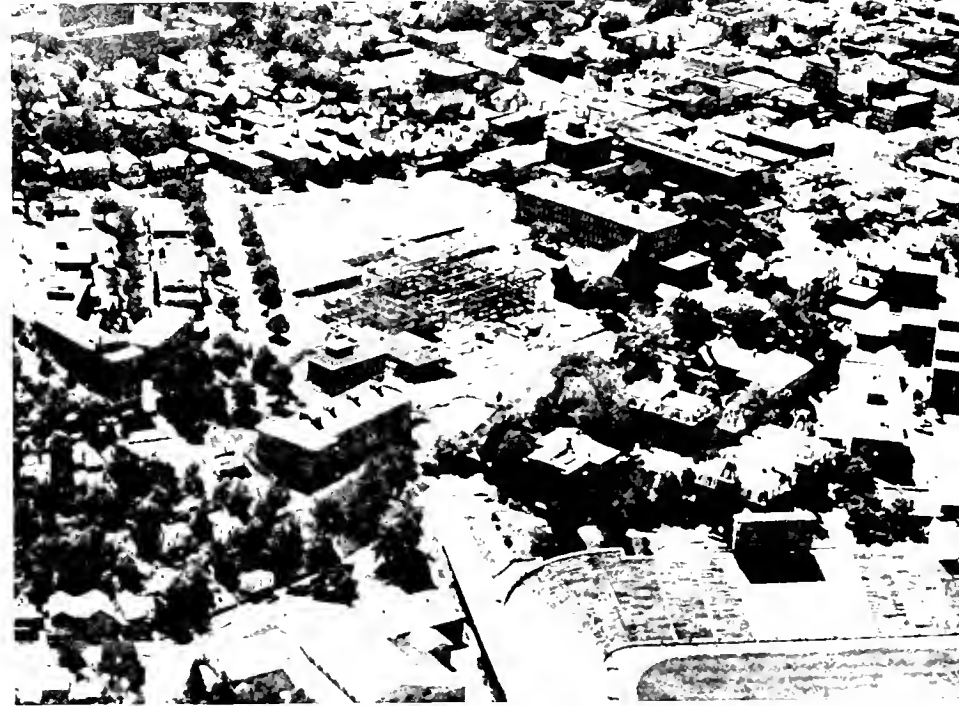

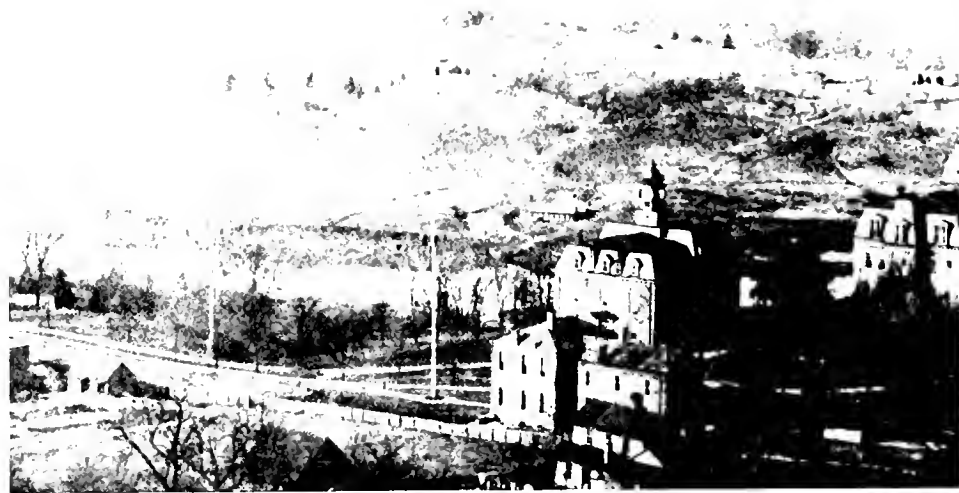

The Morgan Stockade Fort was established in 1772 to protect the settlers from Indian attacks. Col. Zackwell Morgan founded the city of Morgantown in 1785 upon this site. One aspect that present West Virginians and the pioneers share in their daily living is the condition of the roadways. There was a time when each household had its separate "Out House" as compared to modern indoor plumbing. A noticeable change in the landscape is in the increase of buildings that can be seen in each of these pictures; along the Monongalia River, Woodburn Circle, and the country side surrounding the University grounds.

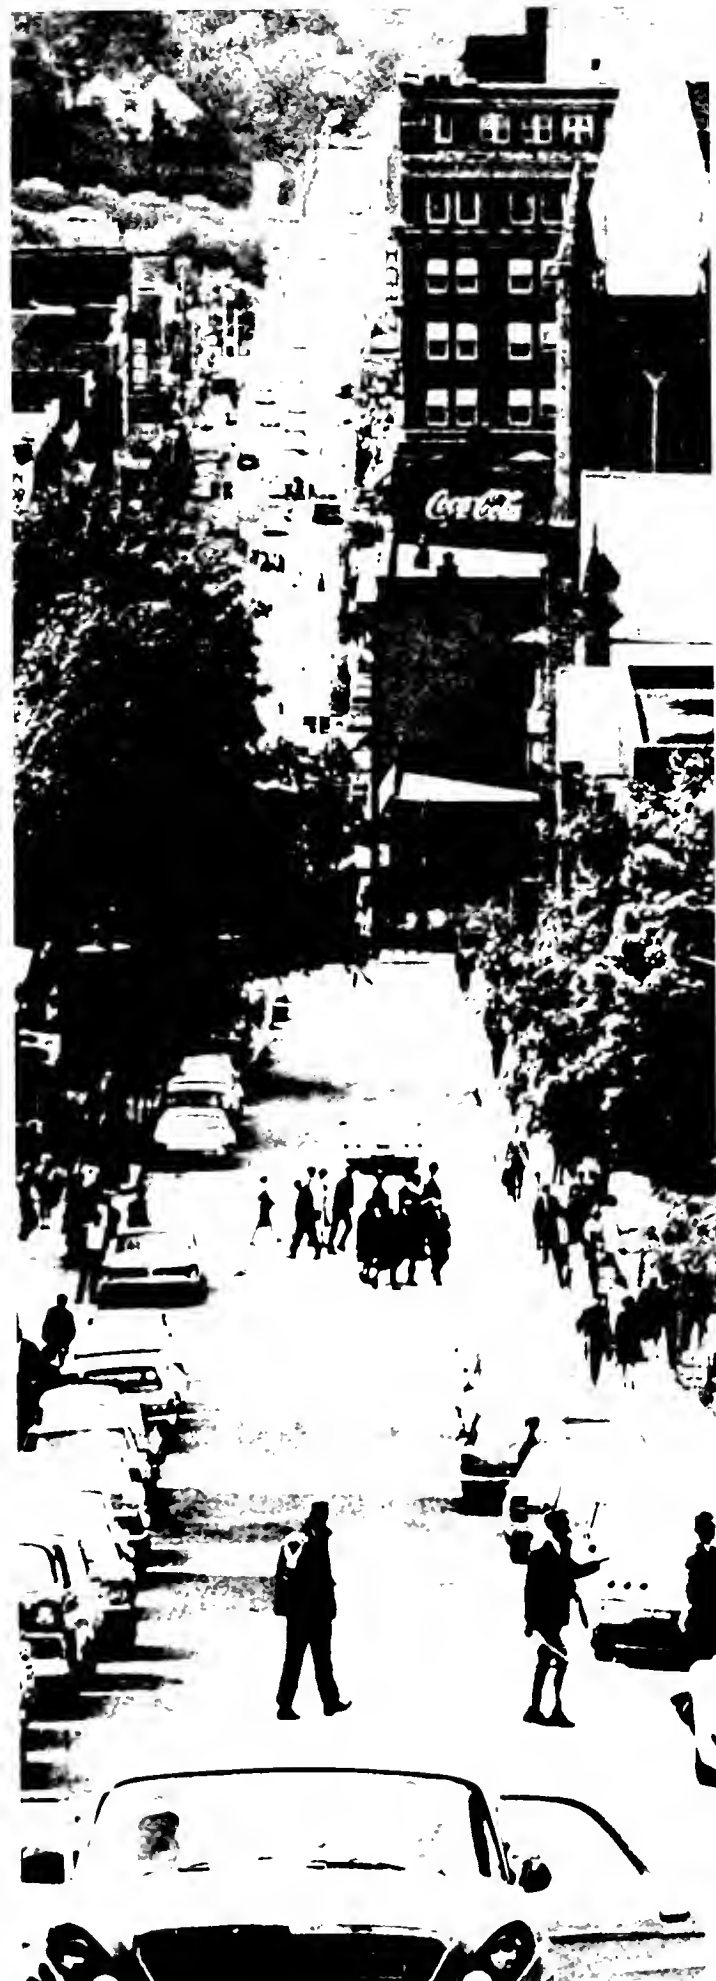

The Monongalia Academy was incorporated by an act of the Virginia legislature in 1814. The first academy building was located on the corner of Spruce and Wiley streets. It was divided into two school rooms.

In the year 1828, two lots were bought, located on the corner of Walnut and Spruce streets and between 1828 and 1831 a two-story brick building was erected for the use of the Academy.

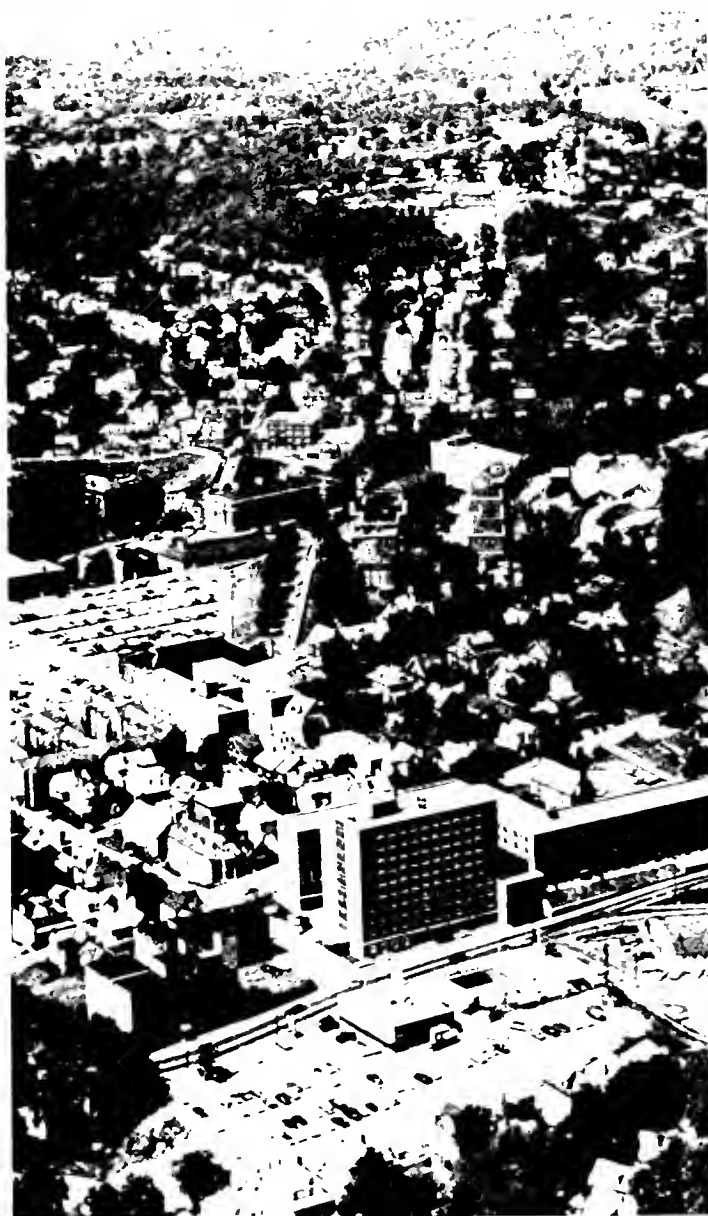

During this period the school widened its sphere of usefulness and Morgantown became the educational center of the state.

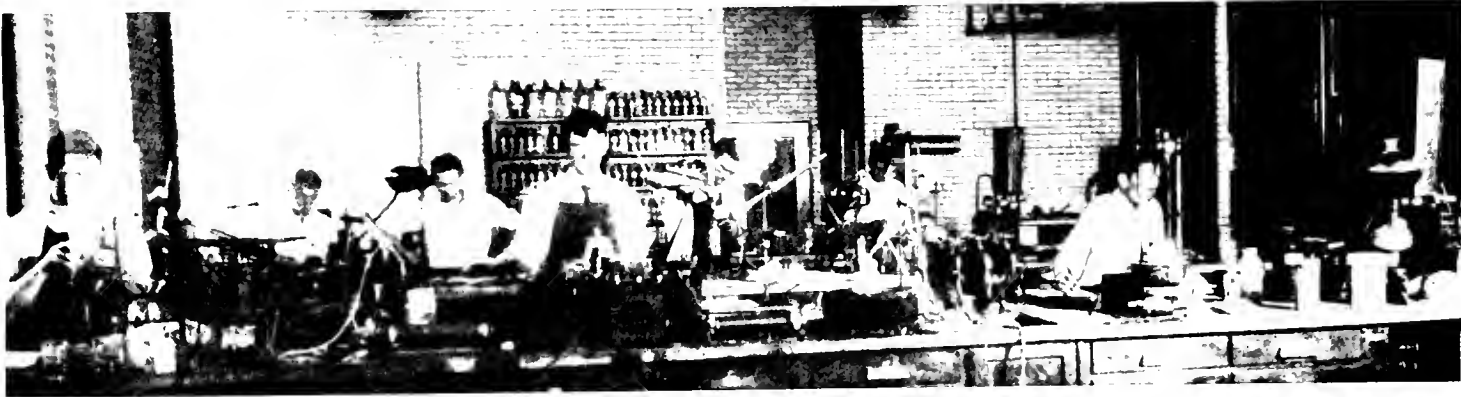

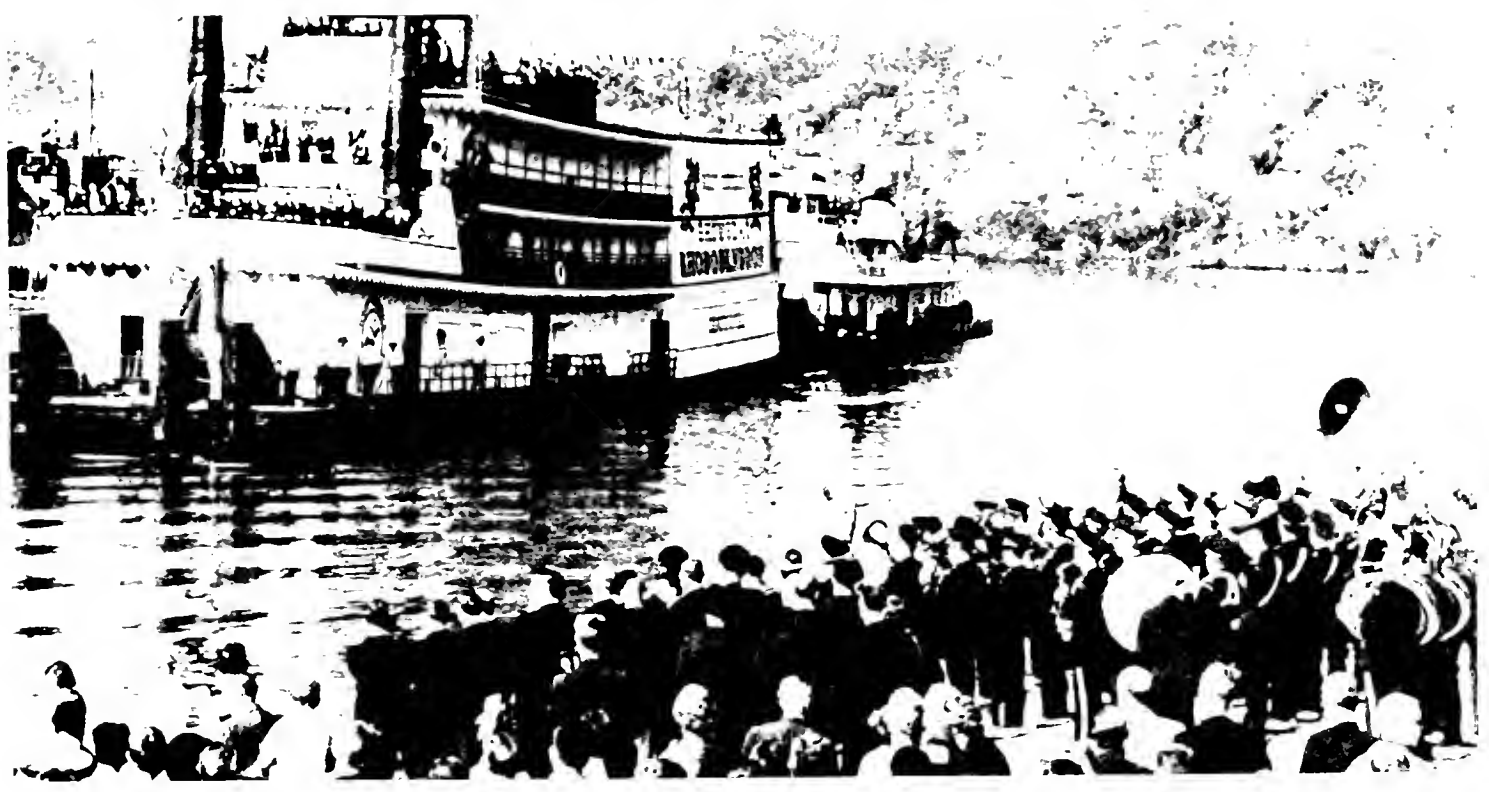

For over 12 a century Monongalia Academy flourished! Congress passed an act on July 2, 1862, donating lands to the states and territories to establish "Colleges for the benefit of Agriculture and Mechanical Arts." In 1864 this act was extended to the new born state of West Virginia. WV Agricultural College was founded in 1867; the name was changed the next year to West Virginia University.

The Trustees of the Monongalia Academy offered the legislature all the real estate and personal effects of the Academy, including the property known as Woodburn Female Seminary, provided that Morgantown be selected as the seat of the college; the offer was accepted.

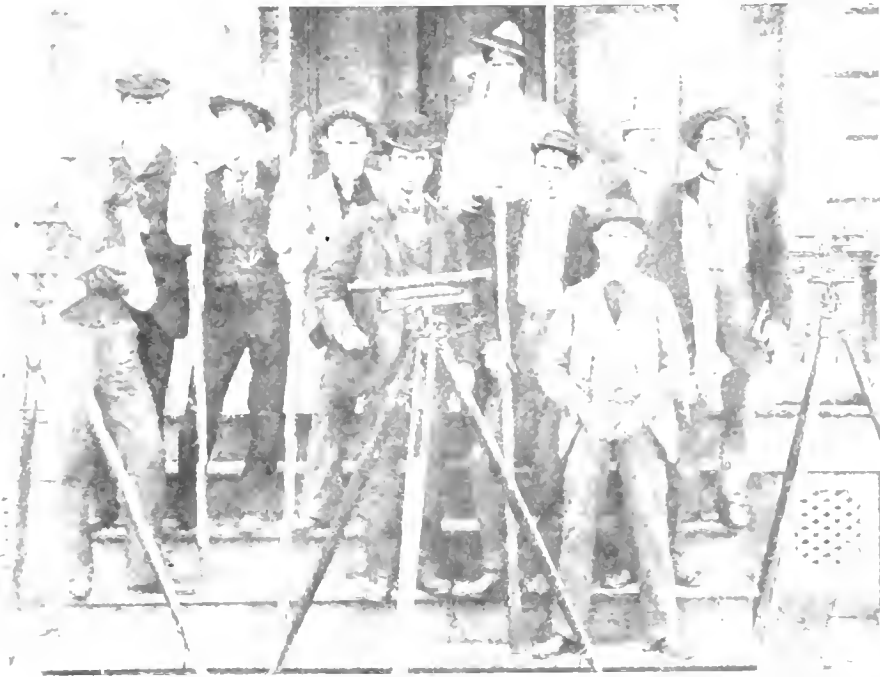

Rev. Alexander Martin, D.D., was elected first President of WVU. His inaugural address explained the condition of education at that time. "It is a most humiliating truth, and enough to make one weep, that the unhappy and illiberal legislature from across the mountains has left us here in West Virginia — an inheritance of 100's and 1000's and 10,000's of our fellow citizens — unable to write their names or read God's work."

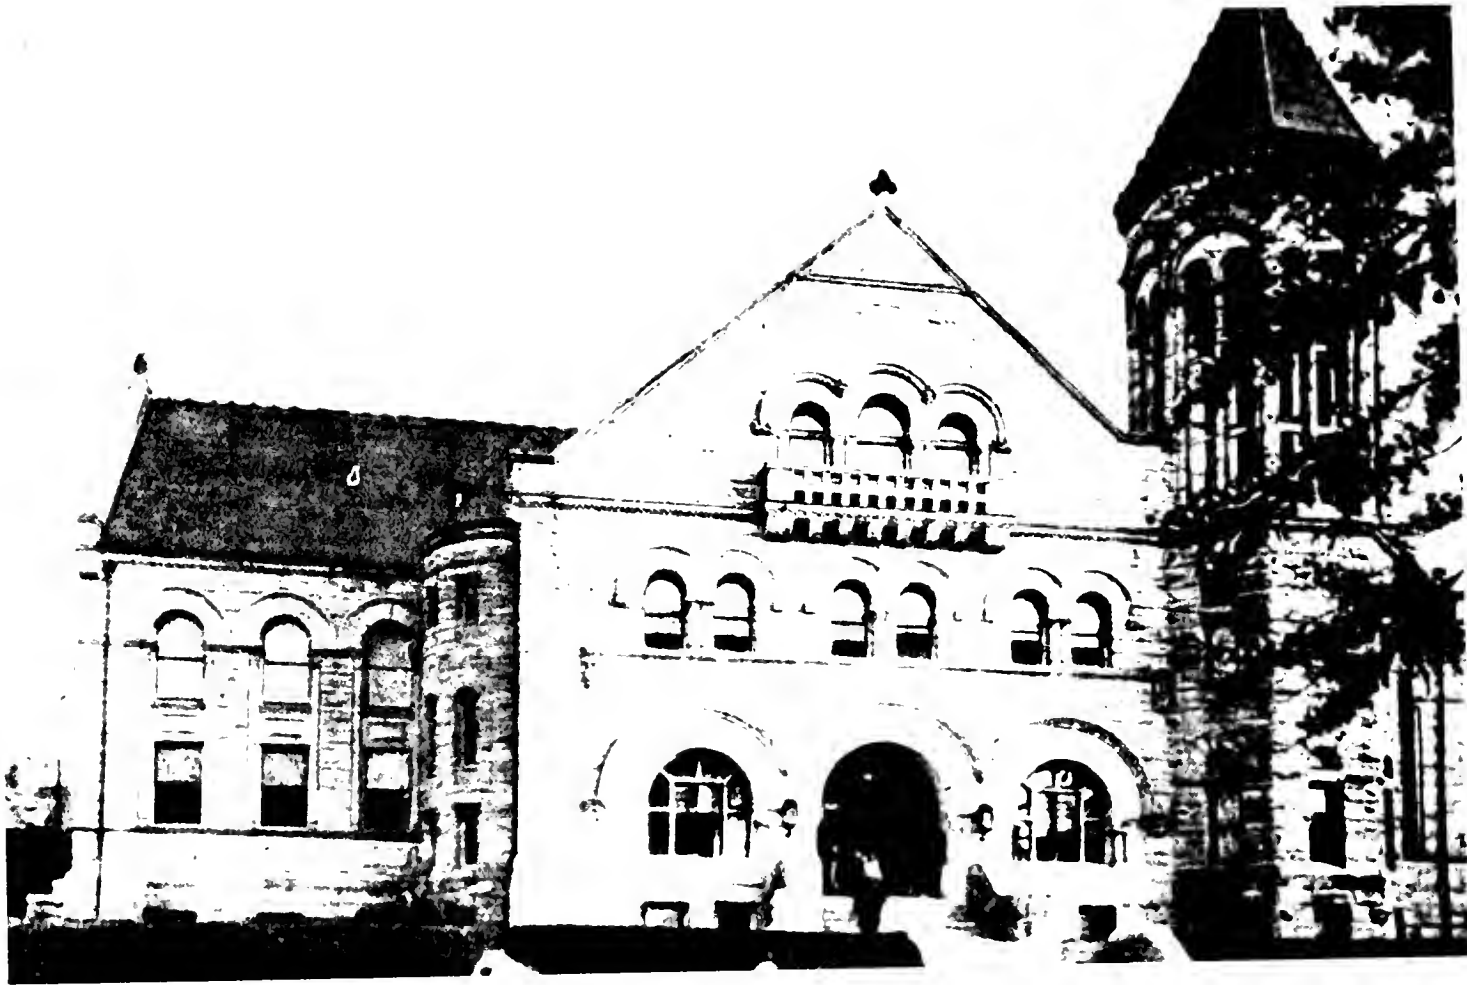

"Even should the present generation fail to appreciate, improve and increase its power, it will still live, and coming ages shall build on the foundation which here, by faith and prayer, we lay, a fabric whose majestic proportions may exceed our most sanguine expectations."

first WVU president

There were 124 people enrolled in the first year of the WVU's history. The Graduating Class of 1896 had very different ideas about the manner of hair styles and notice the men's ties. Many hours of study occurred at WVU's first library, now Stewart Hall. In the '60's, students enjoyed entertainment and snacks in the old Mountain Lair. During the mid 1800's, people would gather in front of their favorite store to exchange bits of news.

Being Editor-in-Chief of the 1976 MONTICOLA has been an experience I will long remember. Designing layouts, organizing the various sections, and working with the staff has provided an insight into the University, student life, and the business world that could not have been gained any where else.

Working on the yearbook has not always been an easy or enjoyable task. There have been times of working till five in the morning to meet a dead line, trying to lay out a 304 page publication on kitchen tables and apartment floors because the West Virginia University would not provide office space for the yearbook, discovering that unreplaceable pictures have been lost, and realizing that a section editor did not complete their assignment . . .

All in all, the experiences that I have gained in connection with the yearbook have been ones that will be treasured for years to come and may be "Reflections" of WVU 1976. At this time, I would like to thank all those who gave of their time and skills to make this publication a reality.

Anita, this page is dedicated to you for all the effort and time that you gave so unselfishly in the completion of this book.
